

COMMENT OF THE DAY

American Policy On Quemoy

MR Dulles's remarks to the Press on Sunday before attending the National Security Council meeting at Denver indicate that there has been virtually no change yet in American feeling on the defence of Quemoy Island. Some change may emerge from the meeting, of course, but the present policy appears to be: no definite commitment to defend Quemoy, but American military commanders may at any time recommend extending protection. Their views may or may not be accepted by the Administration. If anything emerges from Mr Dulles's brief comments, it is that Washington does not feel that an invasion of Quemoy is imminent. The Americans certainly do not appear to be infected by Taipei's hysteria. Despite the extravagant reports emanating from Formosa last week on the sinking of what was described as "an apparent invasion fleet of 100 armed junks", it would appear that local fishermen of indeterminate allegiance suffered greater losses than the Chinese People's Army. The 100 junks were in fact only ten junks and their armament was probably no more lethal than fish-hooks. During the present tension, claims by either side should be treated with great reserve, but, if anything, the accounts given out daily by the New China News Agency do appear more plausible (and certainly more restrained) than the Nationalists'.

THERE are certain puzzling features about the recent Communist campaign against Quemoy. Mr Dulles said yesterday although there were "considerable Chinese forces around Amoy", they were not "very spectacular". And the Chinese air force—which is equipped with modern jet fighters far superior to the Nationalist propeller-driven planes—has not yet appeared in the present campaign. One would have thought that if a serious attempt at invasion was contemplated there would at least be manifestations of greater activity on the Communist side. Were those shelling attacks, after all, just to find out how far the Americans would go in helping to defend Nationalist-held islands? The Americans have given the Chinese singularly little information of their intentions up to date apart from reaffirming the broad over-all policy to police the Formosa Straits. The Chinese Nationalists, with a large garrison on Quemoy, feel confident of holding it against an amphibious assault provided U.S. Navy and Air Force assistance is forthcoming. Neither the large Nationalist force nor the prospect of American military aid need deter the Communists, however, and it would be wrong to regard last week's attacks as a bluff. The Communists have patiently tolerated the domination of Amoy Bay by a hostile island for four years. The latest raids by Nationalist aircraft could only have added insult to injury and it would not be surprising if, despite the apparent absence of preparations, the Communists had suddenly swooped on the island.

U.S. UNDECIDED ON QUEMOY DEFENCE

Officials Fear Consequences Of Intervention

Fat Boys Naughtier Than Thin Ones

London, Sept. 14. Fat boys and girls are naughtier but happier and smarter than thin ones, according to surveys of children.

That was the conclusion of two speakers among 50 who addressed the British Association for the Advancement of Science in the last full day of its recent annual meeting here.

A research psychiatrist, Dr R. W. Parnell, told the Association that boys who behaved themselves were generally lighter than average in build. Surveys had also shown that delinquent youths and girls suitable for reformatory training were found to be more often stocky or tubby.

Boys of less than average muscle tended to be anxious and shy. Confidence was more usual in fat boys and aggressiveness more common in the stocky ones.

Miss M. A. Davidson, a consultant clinical psychologist, said that in general intelligence tests the fat boys and girls did better. The thin ones came next and the muscular types were poorest.—China Mail Special.

Anti-Negro Move

300 U.S. School Children Go On Strike

New York, Sept. 13. About 300 pupils in White Sulphur Springs High School, West Virginia, went on a "student strike" today and paraded through the streets in protest against the admission of 25 Negroes to the school.

They demanded that 23 negro children, who were admitted to schools formerly reserved for white children under a new local government order, should be sent to the Bolling High School at Lewisburg, the former negro high school.

The Greenbrier County School Superintendent, Mr. D. D. Harrah, said only 100 regularly-enrolled pupils attended classes. Mr. Harrah said 40 students were also absent from Rupert School, where 950 students, including 12 Negroes, were enrolled.

"The protests are strictly over integration," he said. He added that all schools, including Negro institutions, were operating on the same basis as last year before the Supreme Court handed down its anti-segregation ruling.

However, he said, Negroes who sought admission to white schools were accepted this year on a "tentative" basis.

White and Negro students went to school together for the first time in Washington today. School officials said there would be some classes with members of both races in practically every school in the District of Columbia, where white and Negro pupils were previously separated.—United Press, France-Press and Reuter.

19 Escaped From Crashed Plane

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 13. The number of people who escaped alive from the sea crash of a Brazilian DC-3 airliner rose to 19 today when four passengers listed as missing were found to have been rescued by small boats.

The plane carried 23 passengers and four crewmen. Two bodies have been recovered and five persons are still listed as missing.

Heavy tugboats and rescue ships raced up to the wreckage, which crashed in the bay.

World War III Might Result

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT AND REUTERS

Washington, Sept. 14. The United States Government has not yet decided whether it should go to the defence of Quemoy Island.

Military and diplomatic officials are split on what would happen.

Some argue that World War III would be set off if the United States gets involved with Quemoy's defence.

President Eisenhower made it plain yesterday that the meeting of the National Security Council—America's top security body—at Denver, Colorado, had made no hard decision.

The President said it was merely a consultation at which certain policies were reaffirmed. "There, he said, were to be discussed the vital interests of the United States wherever they may arise, to make better partners of old friends and to get new friends wherever we can."

Reuters said President Eisenhower's report on the National Security Council meeting suggested the Government would leave it to the military authorities for the time being to decide whether and at what point the United States' Seventh Fleet ought to go into action to defend Quemoy against Chinese Communist attack.

Military experts appear to be satisfied that the Nationalist forces on Formosa and Quemoy are strong enough to repel any invasion attempts by the forces at present aligned by the Communists on the neighbouring mainland.

COULD BE DEFENDED
Officials refused to discuss any detailed interpretation of the existing instructions to the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa and the Pescadore Islands from Communist attack in the light of the recent hostilities around Quemoy.

But Mr Dulles's statements yesterday and earlier have made it clear that Quemoy could theoretically be defended by the Seventh Fleet on the basis of their existing instructions.

Whether the Seventh Fleet would actually precipitate such a renewal of hostilities between Chinese Communist and United States forces without referring to Washington for reinforcement is another matter.

POWERS TO NAVY
There have been suggestions in the United States press that to give the United States Navy the final power of decision over whether to defend Quemoy would give them the power to involve the United States in a new war.

As the President and the Secretary of State are now following a policy of keeping the Communists guessing as to the United States' intentions, the fact that can be inferred from public statements since the Security Council met yesterday is that "at least" the military authorities have not yet advanced any specific proposal for action by the United States to repel an attack upon Quemoy.

QUEMOY VISIT
Nationalist China's Vice-President and Defence Minister, General Chen Cheng and Mr David Yu Tai-wei, flew from Formosa to the bombarded island of Quemoy today with the Commanders-in-Chief of the three services.

They inspected the Nationalist-held island, three miles off the Chinese coast—which has been

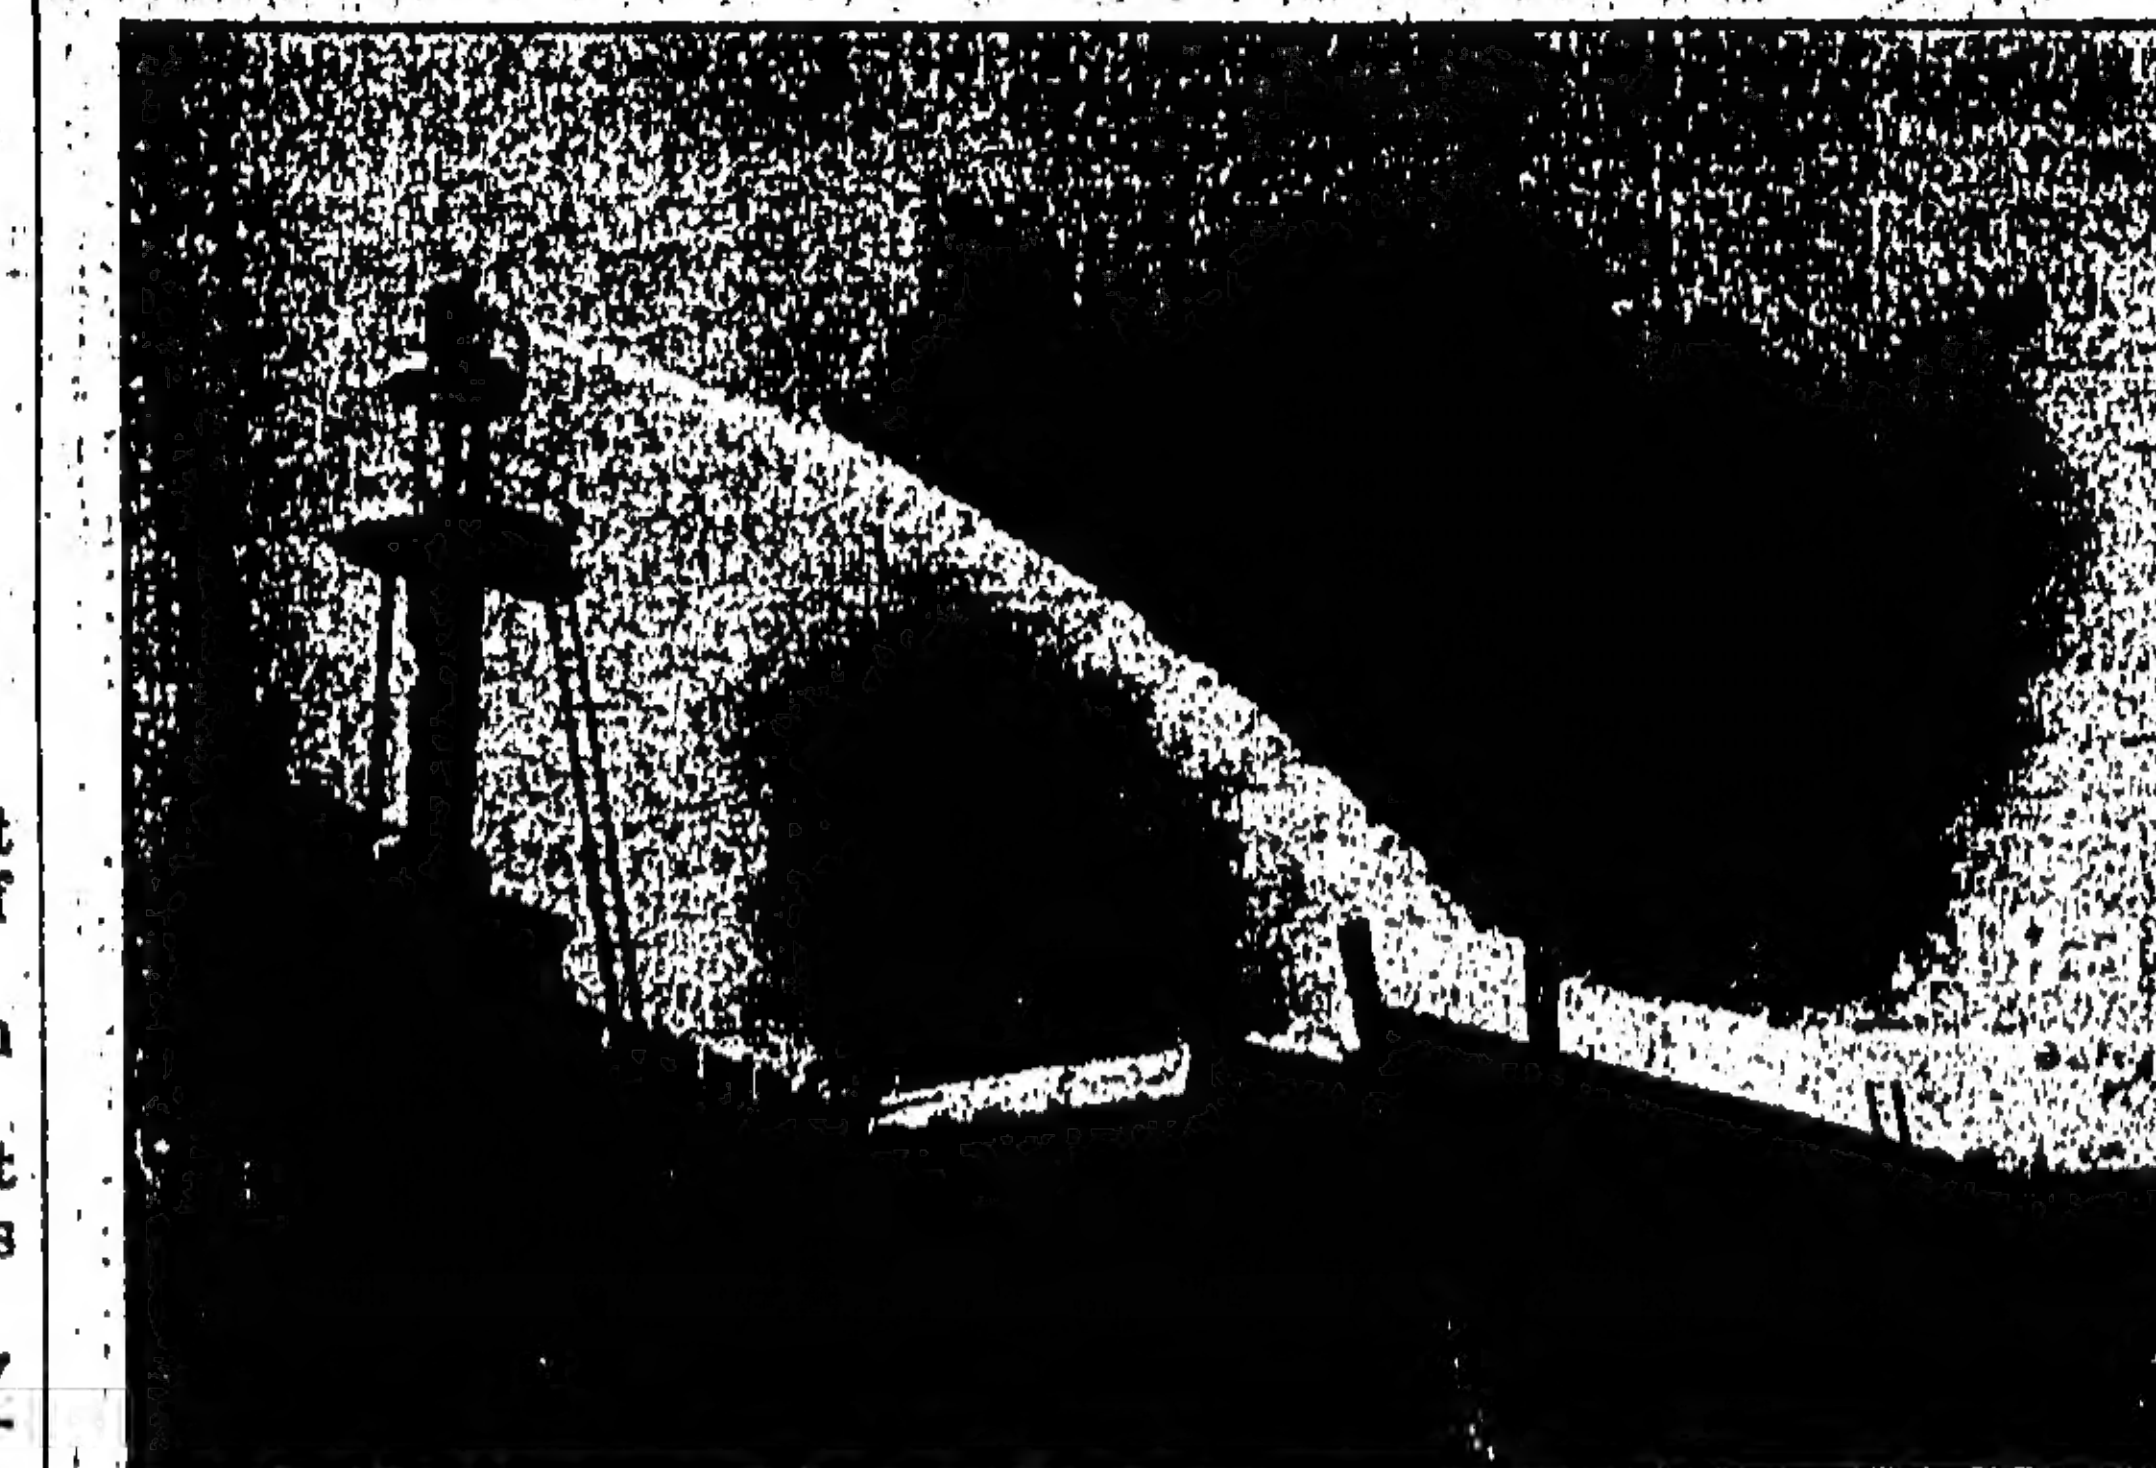

Tanker Hulk On Fire In Harbour

A fire broke out aboard the hulk of the Japanese tanker Isupushi Maru early this morning, while she was at anchor off Lanchow. The alarm was given at 9.35 a.m.

The fire started in the hold of the tanker and was apparently caused by sparks from an accident to a lamp. The fire spread rapidly and the hulk was soon a mass of flames.

In response to the alarm, Fireboat No. 1 and the Alexander rushed to the scene. They fought the fire for some time but it was too big for them. The Isupushi Maru was then towed to the wharf and the fire was finally extinguished.

Old Tanker Hulk Catches Fire

Clouds of thick black smoke pour from the hulk of the former Japanese tanker, the Isupushi Maru this morning and a fireman standing on the tower of a fire boat aims a jet of water at the blaze. The fire was put out after an hour and a half—See story "Tanker Hulk On Fire In Harbour" at the bottom of this page. (Picture by our Staff Photographer).

Move To Bring Italy Into Brussels Alliance

Rome, Sept. 14. The British-Foreign Secretary, Mr Anthony Eden, is expected to present to the Italian Government today plans for bringing Germany and Italy into the five-nation Brussels alliance.

This pact, signed in 1948 largely as a defence against Germany, at present embraces Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. It contains a hard commitment for the signatories to come to the defence of each other "with all the military and other aid and assistance in their power" if any of them is the victim of "an armed attack in Europe". The alliance would have to be revised if either Italy or Germany joined it.

It is believed here Mr Eden's proposal for a widening of the Brussels Pact is accompanied by suggestions for the limitation of German armed strength in relation to that of France. He discussed Germany's entry into the alliance with the West German Chancellor, Dr Adenauer, at his meeting in Bonn yesterday.

Italian Ministers are expected to welcome the country's inclusion in the Brussels Pact, seeing in this proposal a great British commitment in the affairs of the Continent.

Italy is also expected to support any proposal to bring West Germany into NATO, so long as it has the approval both of Washington and Bonn.

TRIESTE
Mr Eden arrived here yesterday after visits to Brussels and Bonn and will complete his "little Europe" tour with a visit to Paris.

Fred Astaire's Wife Dies

Hollywood, Sept. 13. Mrs Phyllis Astaire, wife of the screen and stage dancer Fred Astaire, died today at the Astaire home in Beverly Hills after a long illness.

The nature of the illness was not disclosed. She was 46.

Mr Astaire, who has been rehearsing for a 20th Century-Fox picture, "Daddy Long Legs," was at her bedside.

She was the former Phyllis Livingston Potter, a New York socialite.—United Press.

Lunatic Kills 10 Children

Calcutta, Sept. 13. Ten children were hacked to death by a lunatic who ran amok in a school yesterday. The man, who walked in a garden, slashed the children to death with a heavy sword-like dagger while they were at play.

The schoolmaster tried to stop him but failed. He was finally shot dead by a police constable.

Plot To Kill Eisenhower

New York, Sept. 13. A Puerto Rican revolutionist testified today that President Eisenhower had been scheduled for assassination with the same guns used in the shooting in the House of Representatives last March.

The witness was still under examination at the close of the court session today and had not yet testified whether a day was set for the planned attack on the President.

He was Gonzales Lebron Sotomayor, of Chicago, who has pleaded guilty to the seditious conspiracy on which 13 other Puerto Rican nationalists are standing trial.

He is the brother of defendant Lollia Lebron, who has already been convicted for her part in the Congressional shooting.

BIG GANG
Lebron told the court that the revolutionary movement in the continental United States included several hundred people and a total arsenal of four 50 pistols and a 125 carbine.

With these weapons, he said, the revolutionary leaders agreed to foment a possible 1953 revolution in Puerto Rico in favour of the United States. The plan, he said, was put forward by Julia Pinto Gaudin, a leader of the revolutionary movement and also a defendant.

"We were told to read the newspapers to find out where Congress was and the President," he said, "and then to go to Washington, Lebron testified through an interpreter.

The time was October, 1953, Lebron said, and the revolutionaries found that "the President was fishing in Colorado then."—United Press.

TRAIN CRASH IN PORTUGAL At least 15 Dead

Lisbon, Sept. 13. A passenger train was derailed at Odeira, between Lisbon and the south coast of Portugal, today and at least 15 people were killed and 23 injured.

Lisbon Radio put the death toll at 30 in the accident, which occurred in the late afternoon when an engine and three cars were derailed, apparently because of a flaw in the track.

According to a doctor on the scene, there were 11 known dead and 20 gravely injured, although there were indications the death toll may rise.—United Press.

She Refused A Handout

NOW SHE COUNTS NICKELS BY THE THOUSAND

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Sept. 13.

Charles Deibel and his pretty wife, Margaret, today began the delightful task of counting thousands of nickels which have poured into their mail box from across the country.

The money has been arriving ever since Garry Moore suggested on his television show last Friday that viewers mail nickels to Mrs. Deibel simply because she "stands on her own two feet" and does not ask for a handout.

Each train brought new sacks of mail for the overwhelmed couple, leading observers to speculate the nickels may add up to $100,000 when the last envelope is opened.

Mrs. Deibel, the 26-year-old mother of a small son and daughter, appeared on Moore's programme in New York last Friday, then returned to her home here to cope with the mushrooming fortune.

"Ho (Moore) said I had a pretty face and invited me to come to the stage," Mrs. Deibel said. "Then he asked if I were rich. I told him we certainly were not but we weren't looking for any free touches."

EXTRA HELP

"We chatted for a few minutes. Then Garry just popped out with the suggestion that everyone watching the show send us a nickel. And they've certainly been sending them."

The Post Office in Mt. Pleasant, a town of 1,000 persons, has hired extra mail handlers to deal with the Deibels' unexpected windfall. More than 60,000 envelopes arrived during the week-end.

There simply was no room for the bulging mail sacks in the Deibels' home, but arrangements were made to open the envelopes at the Masonic Temple, a gesture symbolizing the excited townspeople's spirit of co-operation.

SALESMAN

The counting was under the supervision of a certified public accountant. A representative from the Columbia Broadcasting System also was on hand to assist in the job.

Mrs. Deibel, whose husband is an appliance salesman, said most of the money will be "put in the old sock" and that some undoubtedly will be used to finance their children's education.

Meanwhile, efforts were being made to get a legal opinion on whether the money is tax free. Moore said he believed each nickel should be considered a separate gift on which there is no income tax.

Not all of the money who responded to the entertainer's suggestion held their gifts to a nickel. Some of the envelopes contained paper money.—United Press.

Birmingham To Deal With Colour Problem

Birmingham, Sept. 14.

A liaison officer who will help to deal with the problems of the city's several thousand coloured people has been appointed by Birmingham Corporation.

He is Mr. William John Davies, 50, who has held colonial service appointments in Sierra Leone, the Gold Coast and elsewhere.

He was principal of the Prince of Wales school in Free Town before becoming senior education officer there. Later he was personnel manager of the railway administration at Takoradi, Gold Coast.

Latest coloured subjects to arrive in Britain include 700 Jamaicans who landed at Plymouth from an Italian liner in search of work.

FIRST GLIMPSE

Wearing only light summer clothing, they huddled together on the decks of the liner for their first glimpse of England—and met heavy rain.

The new arrivals will become the latest addition to the West India colonies of emigrants now in different parts of Britain—mainly London, Wales and the Midlands—now estimated at over 20,000.

Inspired by reports of highly-paid jobs they used their savings or borrowed money to pay the £70 fare.—China Mail Special.

Slaughter Of Cows: Women Protest

Calcutta, Sept. 13.

Women constables were called out today to restrain some 300 veiled Jain women from marching on the legislature in protest against the slaughter of cows.

Thirteen of the marchers were arrested before the group, led by holy women, was dispersed. Their procession was in direct defiance of a police ban on public assembly.

Immediately after the Jain march was broken up, the Communists and Socialists made two parallel bids to do the very same thing and parade to the legislature.

The Communist procession was by Jain unionists demanding the reinstatement of workers dismissed for being unruly. They also demand the reopening of the mills which were closed following Red disturbances.

LAND OWNERSHIP

The Socialists led 7,000 East Pakistani refugees demanding that the Government legalize their ownership of lands which they have occupied since emigrating from Pakistan.

The police succeeded in stopping both of these processions also, but the marchers stayed in the street, blocking traffic until afternoon rain dispersed them.—United Press.

BE QUIET IN PARIS

Paris, Sept. 14.

Paris has taken another step towards bringing calm and quiet to the city's roads.

The city authorities have ordered that all motorists must have silencers on their cars before another year is out.

"We will all feel the benefits of a police silence which will be in the tradition of a city whose charm is made up of harmony and discretion," said M. Bernard Lafay, President of the Municipal Council.

M. Lafay thanked motorists for abandoning their hooters—the first step in the city's anti-noise campaign.

But he warned them that the fight would be intensified in the coming months. Dustmen and milkmen had already been asked to avoid the banging that disturbs the early morning silence.—China Mail Special.

Tunisian Home Rule

Paris, Sept. 13.

Senior French and Tunisian representatives met here today to work out the practical details of Tunisian home rule.

Mr. Christian Fouchet, French Minister for Moroccan and Tunisian Affairs, met three Tunisian Cabinet Ministers for the first working session in the negotiations to reach a Franco-Tunisian settlement.

The main issues include the future status of French residents in Tunisia, whose rights must be safeguarded under the French proposal for Tunisian internal autonomy. France will also continue to be responsible for Tunisian defense and foreign relations.—United Press.

He Writes Jingles And The Men Don't Like It

New York, Sept. 13.

As a pilot flying off the famed carrier Enterprise in World War II, Ralph Waldo Cummings won the Navy Cross, five Distinguished Flying Crosses, and a bunch of air medals.

But real fame has not been his until now.

He blasted a Japanese aircraft carrier with bombs in the first battle of the Philippine Sea, raided Truk when it was a hornet's nest of Japanese power, fought flak and Kamikaze from the Marshalls to Japan, and once was fished out after crash-landing in the sea at night.

But he says he never knew how frantic life could be until he got into his present life—that of poet.

His mother named him Ralph Waldo because she loved the works of Emerson. But this Ralph Waldo has an audience for his works bigger than the other probably ever dreamed of.

Millions see him daily. Men snarl and listen. Women heed his words. Little children learn the words of the poet Cummings and recite them over and over with a curious fascination and glow.

WORDS AND MUSIC

He writes singing commercial. Both words and music. And after he writes them he goes on television and radio and sings them.

He's been so successful as a newcomer to the trade of bard of Huckleberry that he wrote his first jingle not quite three years ago that he now has two men on the road, selling his wares. They even range up into Canada and as far west as the Mississippi.

Cummings has been writing songs most of his life. He wrote one about the Enterprise when he was in it. And he had a chapel choir on the "Big E." When the war ended he began singing and acting in New York spots and on television and radio.

A THOUGHT

About four years ago he began singing on commercials, and suddenly the thought struck him. "If this jingle thing is as good a business as it appears to be, I'm going to get into it." So he did. His first job would have thrown a lesser man. The client was a Long Island plumbing firm named Kostynick and McGinnis.

If you think the jingle dodge is easy, try getting that name into a song. But Cummings buckled down. Soon the local airwaves were ringing with: "If it's plumbing and heating, you're on the ball. Very best plumbing and heating of all."

NATIONAL NETWORK

Two years ago he wrote his first national-network jingle. And since then he's tuned up a flood of products: automobiles ("Easy's the feel at the wheel"), beer, bread ("If a body meet a body buying a loaf of rye"), cigarettes, detergents, laxatives ("If nature should forget, go to your medicine cabinet"), cosmetics, shavers, politicians ("If one's town is Youngstown, vote Kryznan for Mayor").

Kryznan, incidentally, was elected. And in a testimonial dinner afterwards the new Mayor named the three persons in his life who had done the most for him. One of them was Cummings. There's been some talk about the Mayor running for the Senate, and Cummings is doing some thinking, just in case ("Ohio's rising with Kryznan").—United Press.

Arms Shipments To Arab States

Squandering Of Resources, Says Sharett

Washington, Sept. 13. United States Army's shipments to Middle East Arab States would not be used to defend democracy but would be a squandering of resources on nations who had a "time honoured tradition of sitting on the fence," the Israeli Prime Minister, Mr. Moshe Sharett, said today.

Mr. Sharett, in an interview published in the weekly magazine, US News and World Report, expressed "profound dismay and mounting anxiety" at the United States policy of arming Iraq, and possibly Egypt and Syria.

The arms would enhance the Arab's "capacity for mischief" against Israel. That was a step away from peace, he said.

NO IDEALISM

Mr. Sharett added: "There is no democratic idealism whatever throughout these countries. Democracy is not something that they would feel so precious as to be worth fighting for."

He expressed his anxiety over the Anglo-Egyptian agreement for the withdrawal of British troops from the Suez Canal area for the agreement was bound to strengthen Egypt enormously both politically and militarily. He was concerned that it should not be encouraged as aggression against Israel.—Reuter.

Swiss Envoy Presents Credentials

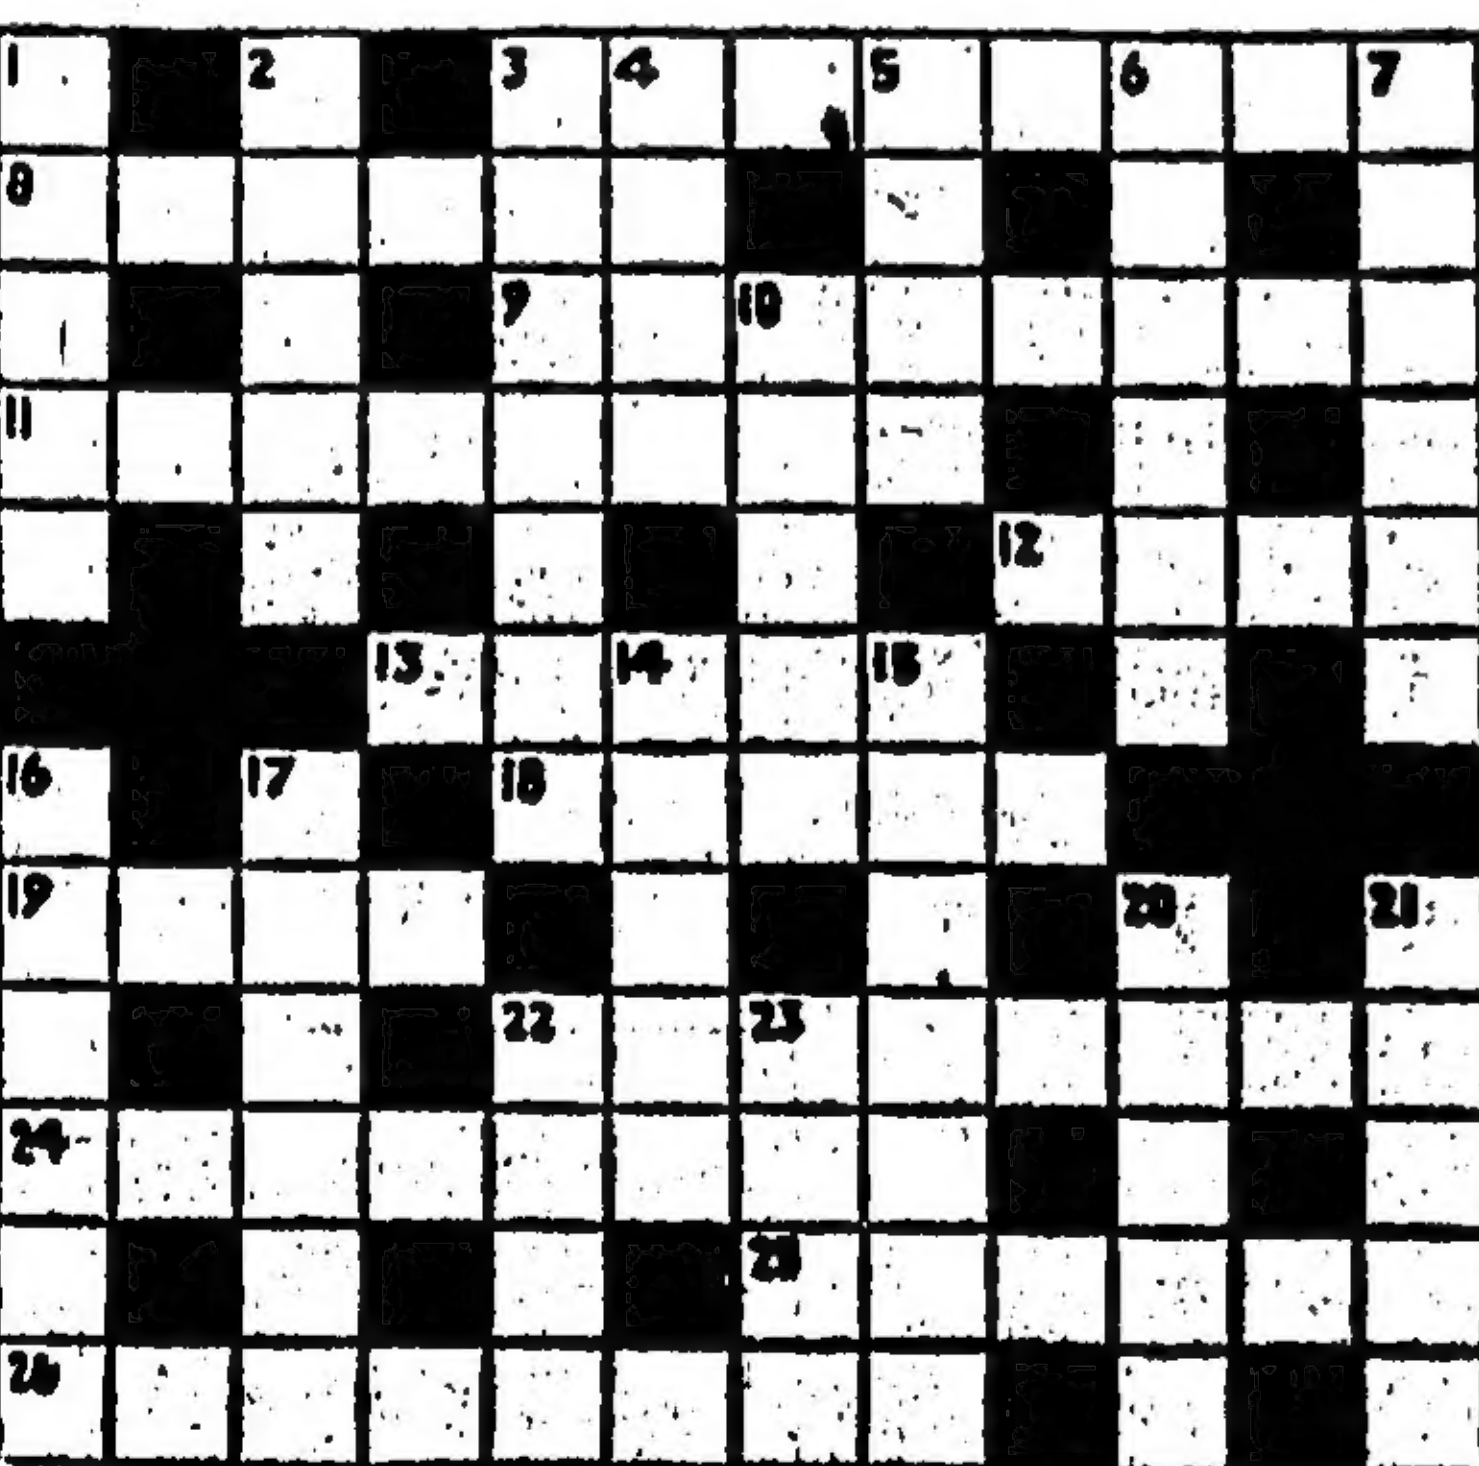

Tokyo, Sept. 14. Radio Peking today announced that the new Swiss Minister to Red China, Fernand Bernoulli, presented his credentials yesterday to the Central People's Government Chairman, Mr. Mao Tse-tung.

Monitored in Tokyo, Radio Peking said Mr. Bernoulli told Mr. Mao that the Swiss Government "attaches the utmost importance to the continuance of the excellent relations which exist between the Chinese and Swiss people."

In reply, Mr. Mao said the "friendly relations between China and Switzerland have developed on the basis of peaceful co-existence." He said the Red delegation to the Geneva conference "enjoyed the hospitality and support of the Swiss Government and the Swiss people."

"From now," Mr. Mao said, "and in the future, the economic links and cultural exchange between China and Switzerland will be further strengthened."—United Press.

OCCUPATION TROOPS

U.S. Considering Extension Of Agreement

GERMAN CONTRIBUTION TOWARDS THE COST

By Paul Scott Rankine

Washington, Sept. 13.

The State Department is now considering another three-month extension of the agreement under which the West German Government contributes towards the cost of Allied occupation troops in Germany, it was learned here today.

One of the secondary results of the collapse of the European Defence Community scheme has been to leave up in the air the position of the existing agreement whereby the West German Government pays a substantial part of the cost of the occupying forces of the United States, Britain and France in West Germany.

The original agreement was to have expired on June 30, but was extended to September 30 in the hope that by then the completed ratification of the EDC treaty would have brought into prospect an entirely new arrangement regarding the presence and financing of these troops.

The disappearance of EDC now makes it necessary for the Allied Powers and West Germany either to agree to extend the operation of the existing agreement or to negotiate a substitute. Officials today said that the State Department was considering an extension to the end of 1954 when the whole situation regarding Germany's contribution to Western defence, either through the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation or some other scheme, may have been clarified.

SECONDARY RESULT

Another "secondary" result of the collapse of the EDC treaty has been to make more difficult the final negotiation of an agreement between Italy and Yugoslavia regarding the future of the disputed territory of Trieste.

Potato May Increase U.S. Atom Supply

New York, Sept. 12. The potato may soon be increasing America's scant supply of uranium, it was revealed today at the 126th national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Uranium is the scarce metal which makes the atomic bomb possible. In view of the world conditions, the United States can neither have enough uranium nor too much.

From potatoes come starch. That starch is made up of carbon and hydrogen molecules hooked together in long chains. At intervals in the chains are electrically active atoms.

In phosphate rock is uranium, in tiny amounts. The trick has been to extract it. Now it can be done, with the chains of molecules with their electric atoms taken from potatoes.

TRIUMPH

This triumph in the chemistry of sub-microscopic particles was the work of Dr. Victor K. La Mer, Professor of Chemistry at Columbia University, aided by two other professors.

It was so important that the chemical meeting was going to hear not one but three technical reports.

Of immediate and practical importance was the existence of huge reservoirs of phosphate wastes to which the process can be applied at once. Indeed, Dr. La Mer said, it already is being applied, though still on a small scale.

DEFINITE PATTERN

The polyelectrolyte molecules attach themselves to the sub-microscopic particles, "according to a definite pattern, and build up a three-dimensional porous network."

This curdy mass will flow through conventional filtering equipment, which separates the uranium and other constituents from one another. Without the addition of the polyelectrolytes, the slime clogs the filter and thus makes it impossible to filter the particles out.—United Press.

BATCHELOR TRIAL

Progressives Were To Be Smuggled Into United States

San Antonio, Texas, Sept. 13.

The last army witness in Cpl Claude J. Batchelor's trial said today that at least part of the 20 Americans who joined the Communists and are in Red China are supposed to be smuggled back to this country as high Communist leaders.

The witness was Wilbur Z. Watson, 33, who was on the witness stand before the army rested its case against Batchelor, charged with collaborating with the Chinese in prison camps.

Watson said he heard Chinese Gen. Chang tell the "non-coms" who then totaled 23 men and included Batchelor and Cpl Edward Dickenson. "You all know the purpose of this is to be Communist agitators and to be smuggled back into the United States."

Twenty Americans and a Briton of the original 23 remained behind. Batchelor and Dickenson decided at the last moment to return home. Dickenson has been tried by court-martial and sentenced to 10 years for collaboration.

FORMER SHERIFF

Watson, a former soldier, said that when he was captured, the Chinese found on him papers identifying him as a former deputy sheriff, constable and marshal in Mississippi. This, he said, caused the Reds to suspect that he was an American agent who had allowed himself to be captured.

He charged that they beat him "to a bloody pulp" time and again to make him admit it and he finally signed a paper that he was an American agent. Having signed the confession, he said, he decided that the safest way to keep from being Gravesend, Sept. 13.

The Moroccan cook of a Syrian ship was gaoled today on charges of attempting to murder the Estonian captain and Yugoslav first mate.

The police said Mohamed ben Mohammed, 26, of Spanish Morocco, attacked Captain Johannes Mander, 56, and First Officer Bernhard Miroshovic, 53, with a 12-inch kitchen knife aboard the freighter Sourya in harbour here.

Mander, who suffered four wounds including one needing 40 stitches, testified at a preliminary hearing that Bullai jumped aboard ship and attacked the two officers after the police had brought him back aboard.

In a statement read by the police, Bullai said he brandished the knife to attract the attention of the departing police. He said he had not received any pay since he joined the ship a year ago.—United Press.

COMMONWEALTH DIV. REDUCTION

Ottawa, Sept. 13. An official announcement that the Canadian infantry brigades in Korea would be reduced by two thirds before Christmas, would be made tomorrow, it was learned here today.

The announcement was to be made in a "press conference" in Ottawa, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. The four Commonwealth countries have maintained a division in Korea and plan to reduce its strength by two thirds.

INDIA REDS LAUNCH CAMPAIGN

New Delhi, Sept. 13.

The Indian Communist Party today decided to launch a campaign to demand that the Indian Government take steps together with China for consultation with other Asian countries to "safeguard peace and security."

In a statement published today, the Party said that the Southeast Asia Treaty Organisation was a direct threat to the peace, security and freedom of "the entire people of Asia."

The Communists will also demand that the government of all countries should agree to adhere to the five principles enunciated in the declaration issued by Mr. Nehru and Mr. Chou En-lai, the Chinese Prime Minister, last June 28.

These were: Mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty; non-aggression, non-interference in each other's internal affairs; equality and mutual benefit; peaceful co-existence.

'SABOTAGE'

These decisions were contained in a resolution on international affairs passed by the Communist Party's Central Committee which has been meeting here for six days.

The resolution said SEATO sought to "sabotage" the agreement reached at the Geneva Conference.

"Through this pact to which Pakistan is also a signatory, the Anglo-Americans seek to intensify their pressure on the Government of India and bully them into a complete line-up with the war bloc."

(The membership of the Indian Communist Party is about 60,000 in a population of 350,000,000).—Reuter.

Loyal Cuban Minister Dismissed

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 13.

President del Castillo today dismissed one of his Government's staunchest supporters, the Minister without Portfolio, Ernesto de la Fe, after the latter refused an executive request to resign.

The break was the first rupture in the governmental structure which emerged from the Batista coup d'etat of October 3, 1952 and resulted from de la Fe's outspoken opposition in recent weeks to the forthcoming general elections, which he alleged were a "negation" of the revolutionary principles for which the revolution was staged.

De la Fe was a member of the original government which emerged from the coup d'etat. He was Information (Propaganda) Minister until earlier this year, when the Ministry was dissolved.

Since then he has been Minister without Portfolio and Cuba's No. 1 "Communist Hunter"—United Press.

SEATO Nations Agreed On Their Aim

London, Sept. 13.

The Marquis of Reading, British Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, declared here this evening on his return from Manila that a rapid conclusion had been reached on the SEATO defence pact because the eight nations signing it were agreed on their aim. This was to resist any possible aggression in Southeast Asia and the South-west Pacific, whether it came from within or without.

Lord Reading, who headed the British delegation to the conference, said that in his view the treaty furnished a suitable basis for achieving this aim, but added that it was not possible for him to say in advance what exactly were the economic and military steps which would have to be taken to accomplish this aim.

DRAFT OUTLINES

Lord Reading said, "all we could do was to draft the outline and leave it to the council established under the treaty, to fill in the design." He said that he really hoped that the other nations of the Colombo conference would finish by joining in the pact.

The Minister said that much had been done to "allay the fears of the nations not party to the treaty, who might have thought we were contemplating some sinister step by which, in the event of aggression against them, their countries would be turned into battlefields against their wish."

A clause had been put into the treaty, said Lord Reading, which stated that no such action could be taken by one of the signatories, if it was not with the "consent or at the invitation of the power concerned."—France-Press.

NEW MOVES FOR EUROPE'S DEFENCE

By James Wickenden

THE death of EDC means more than the end of Europe's hopes for federal defence. It may also mark the end of a phase in American foreign policy.

Postwar American vision foresaw a global defence ring protecting the free world. But her efforts failed to awaken equal response from other countries.

Now the time has come when Washington must strive for world defence on new lines. And the Americans have begun again with a look at past mistakes.

Realistically, Secretary of State Dulles has been quick to point out the error of his own country, rather than blame others.

Speaking to the American Legion he said: "We must guard against the dangerous assumption that other nations, as our allies, are bound to do what we want."

He may have had in mind how American hopes have been dashed in the East as well as in Europe because of this assumption.

Generous Aid

GENEROUS American aid poured into Indo-China, in the belief that the French and Vietnamese armies would fight to victory there. But they did not. Washington strove to persuade Japan to full-scale rearmament but Tokyo rules only token forces. Washington also believed that, with the incentive of dollar aid, France would agree to German rearmament through EDC; but that is dead also.

Whatever "re-appraisal" Washington makes, it is obvious that the U.S.A. will not withdraw from Europe or from efforts to encourage collective defence.

There may be much wild talk in Washington's lobbies. But the shape of America's policy has already been foreshadowed in the Dulles statement to the Legion.

The U.S.A. is likely in future to pay more attention to the politics of other countries, to listen to suggestions, and generally to be even more amenable to her allies.

This statesmanlike policy is sure to pay dividends.

Too Much

PAST American policy is understandable in view of the Communist threat—which has already swallowed up many countries since the war's end—and so, too, is the French attitude to EDC.

The EDC prospect was of German officers commanding French troops, Dutchmen under Italians, and every one's defence tied hand and foot to a common policy, with nations powerless to act without common consent.

After three German invasions in a century, it was too much for France to swallow.

But Europe must be defended. West Germany must be free. None disagrees on this. What is the next step?

West Germany's freedom has already framed in the Bonn conventions by the three occupying powers. The conventions did not foresee complete sovereignty. In three vital things control was to remain with Britain, France and the U.S.A.—Berlin's administration, defence, and moves to reunite East and West Germany.

Britain and the U.S.A., it is understood, are agreed that Germany must now have the part freedom envisaged in the Bonn Conventions.

It is realised that unless these concessions are made quickly, growing German nationalism will become restive against Adenauer's friendship with the West.

But it is intended that the controls will stay. Germany is unlikely to be completely free at once. The object must be to quieten French fears that, if West Germany were linked in a defence pact to the West, she might drag her allies into war through reckless moves to unite Germany.

Problem Ahead

It is also agreed between America and Britain that Germany must be rearmament as a full partner in NATO. No watered down version of NATO to cater especially for Germany is desired. It is hoped that, with the Bonn controls still on, France will agree to this.

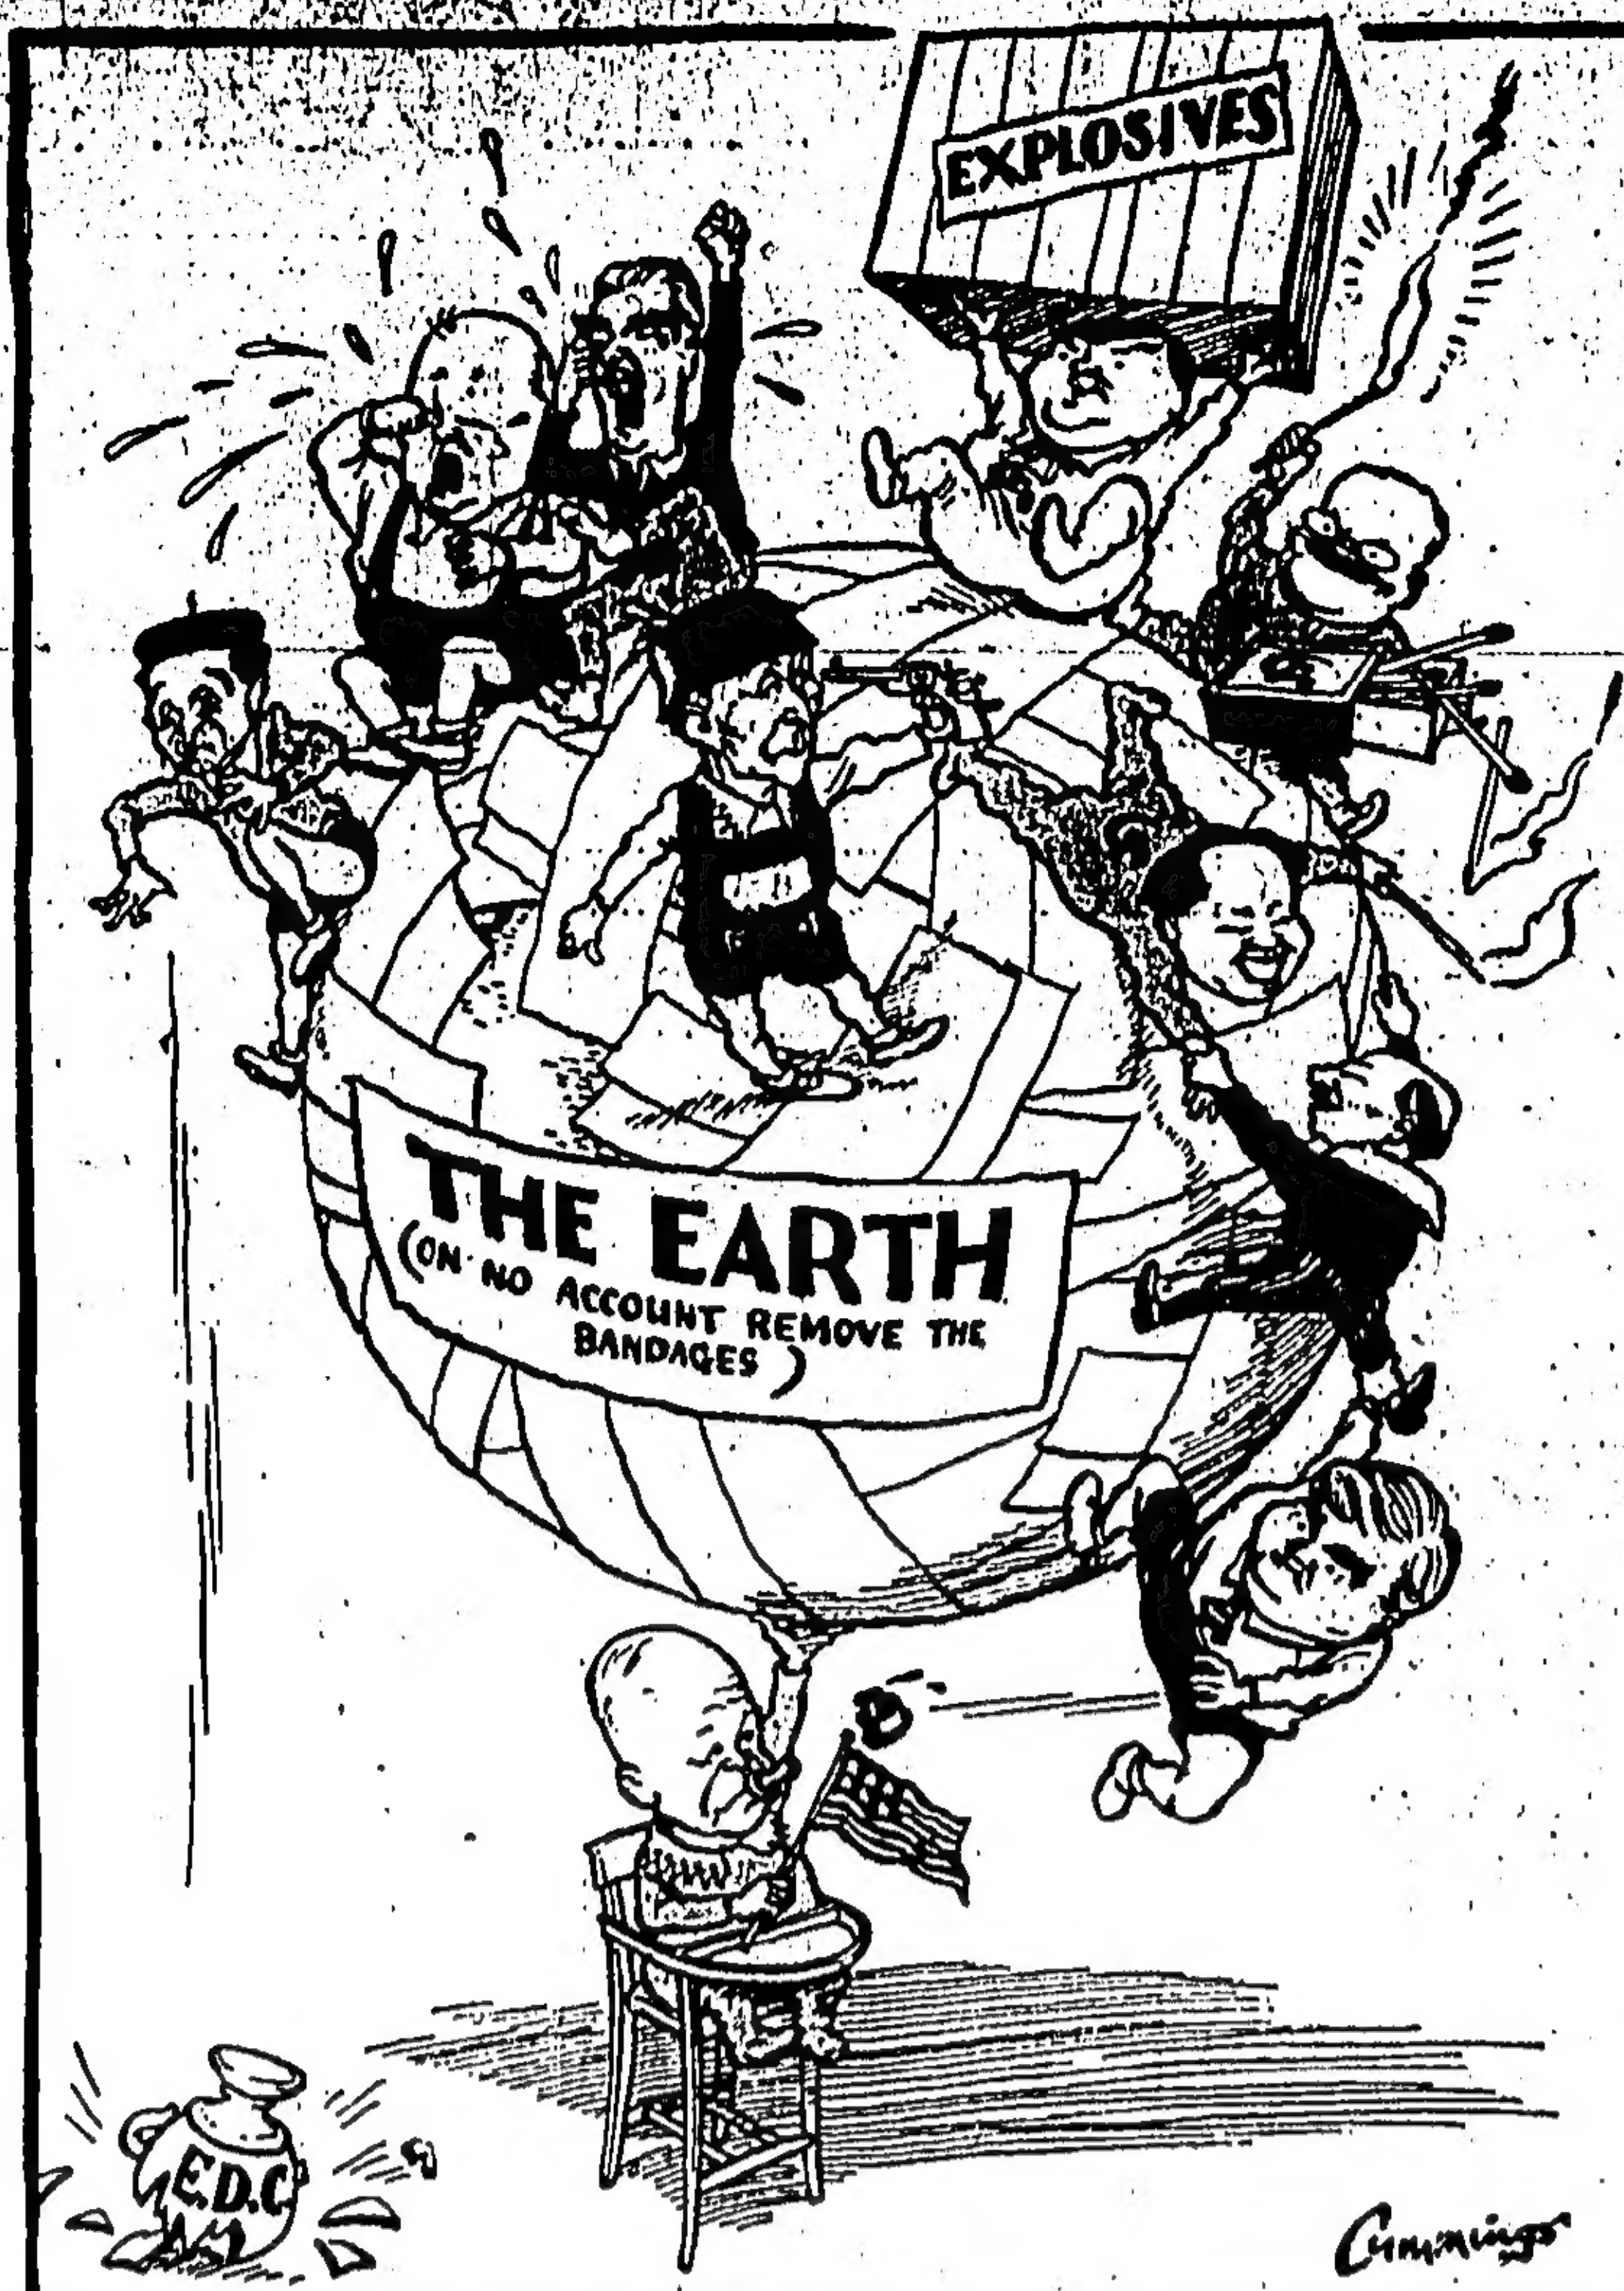

But the greatest problem ahead is no longer French fear of German rearmament.

It is the growing German confidence of West Germany's place in the world.

To the Allies, the danger is not that France will fail to agree with Britain and the U.S.A. on a policy.

It is that Germany will not accept it. Her demands may become too high for the West.

That is the main reason for Western haste to settle Germany now.

A TOOTHACHE ON THE FIORD

By BERNARD WICKSTEED

THIS year the Wicksteeds thought they would have a happy, carefree holiday in Norway. You know the sort of thing—mountain air, tons of cream, and nothing to do but catch trout in the lakes and watch the children grow fat.

Everything went fine at first. Two of the children got whooping cough, but where could you wish to whoop better than a lonely farm in the mountains?

Kari, the youngest, fell in the well, but we pulled her out in a bucket. Philip spent half the night on top of a rock, besieged by a furious ram. Both the ram and the child survived.

The real trouble began when John, aged seven, got toothache. We stuck it for two days but it was no good. I said that if the boy's tooth was not pulled out we should all end in the madhouse.

Lief, the farmer, was going into town next day. He had to take his horse to the vet. So I said I would go too and take John to the dentist.

An hour's walk

AT five o'clock on a lovely August morning the mission of mercy set out.

There in front was Lief with a sack of hay on his shoulder leading his limping horse, and behind them were the child and the tooth and I. It was an hour's walk down the mountain road to the little quay in the fiord where the boat left for Stavanger at six. We had not got half-way down the road before John said his tooth didn't ache any more and could he go home?

We got him on the boat all right and with the help of 15 men and three dogs we got the horse on too.

These little fiord steamers are the only connection with town that many farmers have. They wander through the islands from one miniature quay to another, picking up sheep and people and pigs and fish.

To London-born John it was all so exciting that when we reached Stavanger four hours later he had forgotten his toothache altogether.

He was in favour of abandoning the whole project and spending the day in the shops.

A tooth out

FATHER said he had not got up at 4.30 in the morning, walked down a mountain, and gone in a boat for nothing. Johnny had come to have his tooth out, and have his tooth out he would.

The Norwegian for dentist is "tannlege," or tooth-doctor, and, having no appointment, we picked one at random. By now John was denying he had ever had toothache at all, but the tannlege soon found the tooth and out it came.

From then on till the boat left for the fiords again, we divided our time between toy shops, sweet shops, lemonade shops, cake shops, and an hotel where Father asked for beer and was given some fluid in a bottle labelled "oil." The name may have nothing to do with the taste but it is pronounced something like "oil."

Primed with lemonade and "oil" went back to the boat and found Lief in hilarious form. His horse was still lame, but the vet had given him a permit to buy half a litre of medicinal alcohol to rub on the animal's leg.

Lief said it wasn't much good for a horse's legs but it was wonderful stuff for people. To prove it he took a long swig and handed the bottle to me.

In the search for knowledge I have drunk some curious brews, but this stuff beat the lot. It was 98 percent pure alcohol, and Lief called it "seks og nitli," which is Norwegian for "sex" and is pronounced "Sex or Nitli."

After one drink your eyes come out like a crab's, and after two you can light up your pipe with your breath.

A painful error

SO in the late evening, with the water in the fiord like polished silver, we came to our little quay and started, up the mountain road.

This time it was I who was in front carrying young John on my back, and behind us was Lief, with the bottle of "seks og nitli" empty, trying to carry the horse.

It might have been the end of a perfect day, but for one thing. It had now become painfully clear that the dentist had pulled out the wrong tooth!

I don't know whose fault it was—the boy's, the tooth doctor's, or mine—but you can guess who got the blame.

BUCHMANISM: A NEW WORD IN THE BOARDROOMS

By Bernard Harris

LONDON. CURIOSITY led me last month to stroll up the winding mountain road from Montreux to look again at an hotel which was once a favourite haunt of British tourists.

There, perched among a profusion of trees and flowers 2,000ft. above the placid Lake of Geneva, I found it.

But what many of us remember as the Palace Hotel, Caux-sur-Montreux, is, of course, an hotel no longer.

Its name is now Mountain House. No ordinary tourists frequent it now. It is packed out with people from many lands, all of them converts, or potential converts, to the creed propagated by what is known variously as the Oxford Group or Moral Re-Armament.

AN IDEOLOGY

The World Assembly for Moral Re-Armament—the annual Buchman pow-wow—is in full blast at Caux.

It will go on for many weeks yet. And at the end of it we shall be told that so many thousands of "every race, class, or colour" went to Caux to learn more about an ideology claimed to be "creating renaissance throughout the world."

This meeting at Caux has been a summer-time event for years. Though one of the tenets of Buchmanism is that it changes men, the movement itself changes hardly at all.

At least, that is what I thought until I got home from Switzerland. But now I have come across a strange new manifestation of Buchmanism.

I thought it concentrated its moral powder and shot on trade unionists, factory managers, politicians, and university professors. But now I find it is seeking to invade the heart of Big Business itself—the boardroom.

FROM INSIDE

It is planning to infiltrate into the 10,000-strong Institute of Directors, a body incorporated by Royal Charter, to guard the interests of the men at the top of British industry.

With a becoming modesty the institute accepts the description often applied to it of "the business men's university." And it has a long list of illustrious members, including Lord members of the institute which costs £31 7s. 6d. first class.

If they prefer to save money they can travel third class under Plan "E" for no more than £17 18s. 2d. return.

Some may see in this assault on the boardroom the second wing of a movement which was first directed against the trade unions.

We fellows of the Institute are convinced that such an answer, tested and proved, exists in Moral Re-Armament. An opportunity to see this in action is afforded by the World Assembly now in session at Caux-sur-Montreux, Switzerland.

Having ourselves attended one or more of the Assemblies, some of us accompanied by our wives, we feel strongly that men in responsible positions in British industry should see this work at first hand.

The enclosed documents give some evaluation of Moral Re-Armament, together with information regarding travel to Caux.

UNSOLICITED

The front page carries a message from Robert Schuman, former French Foreign Minister, who caused a stir in 1950 by personally recommending Dr Frank Buchman for the Legion of Honour.

And Buchman himself, who started the movement more than 30 years ago, adds his testimony that his creed has "the power to save and recreate a society on the brink of collapse."

Most of the recipients of this unsolicited literature are likely to be quite as interested in the second document. This is an equally well-produced pamphlet, "How to Get to Caux, the town of wisdom where they will find the answer to the world's problems. It tells them they can reach Caux by air or by rail."

Presumably, if they are directors of several companies and have substantial expenses allowances, they will follow the Buchmanite Faith. For (V.L. Buchman) "the directors who have the power to change the world."

ON FINANCES

General Sir Edward Spears, head of the institute, who is now holidaying in France, will know more about "the power to change the world."

As for Mr. Eton, who is reported of the storm the new public affairs about the institute, the latter have been sent to France. The directors who have the power to change the world.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Play Depends On Your Objective

By OSWALD JACOBY

HOW do you play today's hand at a contract of four hearts? Before you can answer this question, you must first find out whether you are playing for total points or for match points.

The difference is all-important. In ordinary rubber bridge or in a team contest scored in total points, you must play to assure the contract. In a match point contest, however, you must play for maximum even if you must risk the contract for the sake of trying for an extra trick.

In a match point game, for example, you would put up the queen of spades at the first trick. When East covers with the king, you must win with the ace. You now cash the two top hearts and begin on the clubs, hoping that the player who has the last trump also has at least two clubs.

There is no danger if two rounds of clubs get by. On the third club you can discard a spade, and even if this is ruffed, you still lose only one other spade trick and the ace of diamonds. If three rounds of clubs get by, you are sure to make 11 tricks by this line of play.

As the cards lie, of course, the second round of clubs gets ruffed, and the defenders can then take two spade tricks and the ace of diamonds to defeat the contract.

At rubber bridge, an expert would see that this line of play risks the contract. The best way to assure the game contract is either to duck the first trick, or to win the first trick with the ace of spades and immediately lead a low trump towards dummy's jack.

If you let the opponents take the first trick, you expect to win the second spade and ruff your third spade in dummy before drawing trumps.

If you win the first spade trick but give up the first trump trick, you expect to draw all of the trumps safely before beginning on the clubs. Either way, the contract is safe.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been: West North East South
1♦ 10-8 Clubs K-Q-2. What do you do?

A—Pass. You intend to bid one no-trump at your next turn, thus indicating that you have some slight strength and two probable stoppers in the enemy's suit.

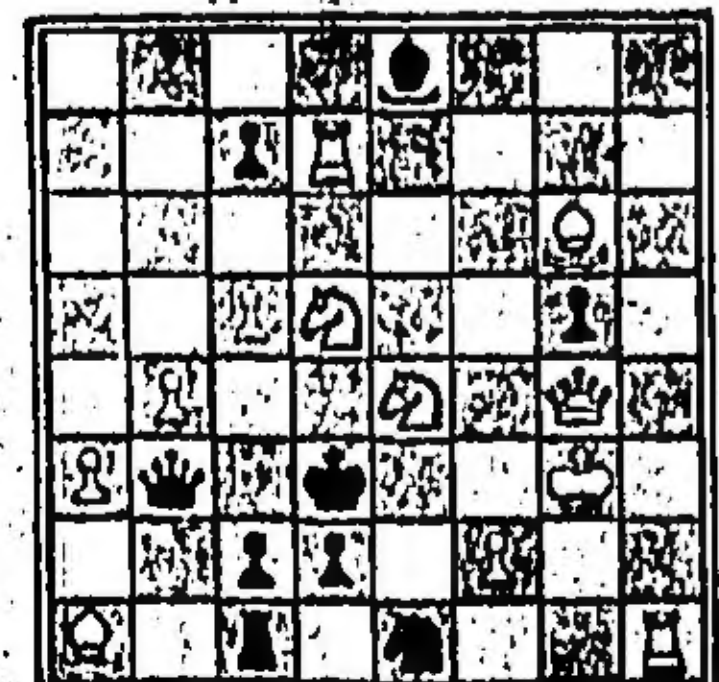

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades 5-3, Hearts 7-6-2, Diamonds 8-5-2, Clubs 7-5-3-2. What do you do?

Yesterday's Games Finish In Straight Sets

With the sort of laugh that one has come to associate more with the villain in an old style barn-storming melodrama, Jupiter Pluvius reached out and turned off the tap at noon on Sunday last and the organisers of the L.R.C. Annual Tournament distinctly heard him mutter "I'll teach these people not to fix any games for a Sunday afternoon".

The courts basked in the sunshine and the friendly games went on apace while the tournament programme fixers removed the few remaining strands of hair from their heads.

Aust. Amateur Billiards Champ. Beaten

Sydney, Sept. 13. Tom Cherry (Australia) beat the Australian champion, Robert Marshall, by 2,710 points to 2,106 and established himself as favourite to win the world amateur billiards championship.

Cherry has won his first two matches, having previously beaten Frank Edwards (England). He now has to play India's champion, Wilson Jones and the South African T. G. Rees.

Cherry, who had finished the first session on Friday 271 points behind, took the lead in the second session today and continued to forge ahead.

Cherry made a break of 243 and also had six century breaks.—China Mail Special.

Drivers' Efficiency Tested In Six Motor Club Trials

Despite the showers and generally unfavourable outlook of the morning, the sun eventually broke through and the concrete surfaced courtyard at Bireley's California Orange Bottling Factory dried in good time for the Motor Sports Club's Driving Efficiency Tests, on Sunday.

A series of six smoothly organised tests were run off, for some seventeen competitors and a large gathering of invited spectators, over the ensuing period of three hours, in the course of which practically every facet of driving ability and car performance were tested to the full.

Competing on equal terms were cars ranging in type from the tiny Fiat 500 of Roger Brudenell to the sleek Austin Healey of Roger Pennells.

Briefly, the form of the six individual tests was as follows:

Test One: Acceleration and Braking Test: Competitors, in Lons style, had to run to their inert cars, accelerate from starting Line A to Line C (some 50 yards distance), stop, reverse back to midway Line B, and finally accelerate forward again for a flying finish over Line C. Fastest in this test, with no errors, was Geoff Arnold in his Jowett Javelin.

Test Two: Reverse Gearing Test: Competitors started facing forwards in an artificially constructed "garage" with a limited set allowance over and above the overall length and width of their car. Starting seated in their cars, (as in all subsequent tests), competitors were required to drive out of the "garage", turn, and reverse in again without touching the "walls" of the "garage". Here Tim Barrett, driving a rebuilt 1939 Morris Eight with valve, performed the manoeuvre in incredibly few seconds to take first place.

Test Three: Outboard Parking Test: For this test two artificial "omnibuses" were set up alongside a curb, leaving a space 1 1/2 times the length of the competitor's car. Competitors were required to park against the stopwatch (as in all tests), within six inches of the curb. Points were lost for parking less accurately, for touching the curb, or for touching either of the "buses", as well as for the time taken. In this test, Cliff Terry, driving in his first M.S.C. competition, and handling the largest car in the event—a Bulky Ford V-8—

Test Four: Fast/Slow Test: This was won by yet another newcomer to the Club—George Wallis—handling the only other Jowett Javelin to attend. The requirements were, to start at the previously mentioned Line C, accelerate as fast as possible to midway Line B, and thence crawl as slowly as possible to finishing Line A, without the benefit of any slipping of the clutch. This test, which contrasted outboard several contestants, including the redoubtable Tim Barrett, who lost his lead here by stalling in the slow section.

Test Five: Corner Parking Test: Here again Tim Barrett came to the fore. An artificial right angled wall-corner was set up to which competitors had to approach at an angle and park as tightly as possible into the corner. Barrett managed to position himself within two or three inches from the "wall" at both front and rear-side on his first run in.

Test Six: The High-Speed Wiggle-Waggle Test, which closed the meeting, produced by far the most thrills and spills for the spectators. Competitors were required to accelerate from Line C straight down to Line A, stop, and then reverse in a wiggle-waggle fashion between three equally spaced stakes back to Line C, thence come forward again weaving between the stakes to a flying finish across Line A. The time for fastest time was recorded here between Norman Reynolds driving a Citroen Light Fifteen and Roger Pennells, driving an Austin Healey. Hundred both performing very neatly and proving that even in speed tests, and family saloon can sometimes equal a sports car.

Apartheid Prevents South Africa From Holding The Games

Johannesburg, South Africa.

Sensational racing in the Empire Games at Vancouver this year has revived regret among many sportsmen here that South Africa's colour bar makes it impossible for this country ever to see an Empire or Olympic Games gathering.

For South Africa's apartheid, or segregation, policies apply strictly in sports as well as in other spheres of life.

Not only have never been admitted to an international team representing South Africa. The loss to the country is felt by many people not only in its inability to be the centre of the world's athletic championships, but also in the neglect of potential talent which might be found among Africans to represent the country.

Successes by native athletes from East and West Africa in the Canadian Games, and the world records frequently made by American negroes in the Olympic Games have reminded commentators here what an athletic team it might produce if everyone were available regardless of colour and race.

Altogether it must have been quite a show for them over there at Vancouver, watching as well as participating, said the Rand Daily Mail, an editorial here. "What a pity for the rest of us that the Games can never be held in South Africa."

Europeans and Africans play the same variety of games including cricket, football, golf and tennis in South Africa. But, in general, they never play each other.

Among South Africa's 9,000,000 Africans, some good performers have been developed in several sports, notably boxing. But none has the chance of world competition unless they can get abroad.

Efforts were made some years ago to send a team of African rugby players to New Zealand for matches with New Zealand's Maoris. The plan failed. More recently, sportsmen were refused to an Indian football team from South Africa to tour India.

White Sport Buffets South African whites sport suffers in several ways from the country's colour prejudice, especially cricket, a national game here.

South Africa restricts her international cricket tours to England, New Zealand, and Australia, omitting the West Indies, Pakistan and India. This means that there are often long gaps in the years when touring sides can be seen by keen South African cricket fans.

Big fights in boxing cannot be staged in South Africa if it means contests between black and white.

Any South African white boxer who rises far enough to challenge a world champion has to accept a match overseas if his opponent is coloured.

Jackie Tull, the African native who won the Empire flyweight championship in Britain, could not defend the title here against a white challenger.

Europeans were forbidden by the police to attend his bouts as spectators in the Transvaal, though white people frequently go to non-European boxing tournaments in other provinces.

Overseas there is no objection to South African whites competing with coloured people. They do so in the Olympic and Empire Games. South African cricketers mingle and meet coloured players among cricketing sides in Britain.

In New Zealand, South African rugby footballers mix freely with Maori players at social affairs. Authorities, however, frown on any unofficial mixing between non-European and white teams visiting South Africa.

British football sides touring South Africa have been advised about this in the past.

Segregation for coloured people in sport in South Africa applies to spectators as well as players. Sports grounds have separate stands or blocks for Africans, usually in the least favourable position in the stadium.

Women's Golf Tournament

Sewickley, Pennsylvania, Sept. 13. The defending champion, Mary Lena Faulk, equalled a 10-year-old record today when she won the opening round of the 54th annual Women's National Amateur Golf tournament.

The 28-year-old champion had little trouble breezing to a 10 and eight victory over Mary Nelson (U.S.) at the Albany Country Club course.

Two former champions and titlists from seven other countries, also advanced in the marathon six-day match play event, in which 145 top lady golfers from three continents and the Territory of Hawaii competed.

Dorothy Kirby (U.S.), the 1951 champion, also looked impressive in her latest bid to regain the title as she defeated Mrs. Henry McQuaid (U.S.) 6 and 4.

The British champion, Frances Stephens, had difficulty on the 6,043-yard par 73 course, but posted a 2 and 1 victory over Jane Martin (U.S.).

Second-round matches will be played tomorrow, after which the 64 survivors will be off in the third round.—United Press.

HKCC Lawn Bowls Closing Day

The Hong Kong Cricket Club will be holding their annual lawn bowls closing day on the greens at Saturday commencing at 3.30 p.m.

Two representatives from each club in the Colony have been invited, and it is hoped to have six rinks in action. At the conclusion of the game, prizes for the annual competitions will be presented.

mon with the pattern at most public events.

Feelings Are Shown Not infrequently Africans show their feelings at international matches such as rugby "test" by openly giving their support to the side opposing the South African team. It comes as a surprise to a visiting side from overseas to find that they have a block of supporters among the local spectators.

Africans and Indians are not necessarily unhappy about playing their games among themselves alone though they may object bitterly to the general principle of it as a national policy for their lives.

It is realised, too, that despite their own enthusiasm, their standards of play for the most part, are still far below international competition, although many people here wonder what special coaching would do for selected Africans if they could represent South Africa.

Segregation in sport reaches down to "mixed" universities where whites and blacks study together but do not play together. Separate tennis courts, for example, are provided at one university for its African students.

Controversy arose recently in the province of Natal over the action of the Natal Provincial Executive Committee in condemning international sport at educational institutions under its control.

The committee's decision followed a game of netball between white Women students of the Natal Teachers Training College in Maritzburg and a team of Indian girls from a local Indian school.—China Mail Special.

IRC Defeat USRC In Bowls Match

The Indian Recreation Club, strong contenders for the Third Division lawn bowls league title, beat the United Services Recreation Club by 87 shots to 82, at the Victoria grounds.

The visiting Indians, winning on two of the three rinks, owed their victory mainly to the 30-9 win of their No. 1 rink comprising R. Omar, E. R. Marker, S. H. Khan and A. J. Hussain. Hussain and his team-mates beat the home rink skippered by N. C. Curry.

C. Curry, leading the USRC's second rink, defeated Alder's rink 24-17, while the rink skippered by R. Reid lost by one shot to the rink led by A. H. Abbas. The score was 19-20.

HKRA HOLDING EXAMINATIONS

The Hongkong Referees Association are holding a series of examinations, consisting of written and oral tests for prospective referees.

These tests, which will be held in the Education Centre of the Victoria Barracks, on next Saturday, are open to both civilian and service members.

Los Angeles, Sept. 13. Akashi Miyagi (Japan) beat John Flets (USA) 2-6, 7-5, 6-4 when the Pacific Southwest Lawn Tennis Championships opened here today.

Professional Cricketers Are Better Off In Terms Of £. s. d. By BRUCE HARRIS

How much is it worth in £. s. d. to become first class as a professional at cricket—and at football? In particular, how much is it worth, in addition to a feeling of pride in work well done, to win the highest honours of the game—the County Championship, the FA Cup, the League leadership?

Football, with its strict regulation of everything connected with the game sets the rewards down in black and white.

So the League handbook tells us all about the wages of the men on the maximum—and the stars of the top clubs are usually on that.

£750 A YEAR They receive £15 a week during the playing season; £12 for the close season. That works out at, roughly, £750 a year.

To this must be added £2 for each win and £1 for each draw. Assuming average results from the 42 League matches, that adds £42 to the £750—that £800 in all. Every five years they may receive £750 as a benefit.

Now for the cricketer. His case is not so simple, for every county makes its own arrangements with its professionals and there is a lot of difference between the richer and poorer counties.

Let us take Surrey, the Championship County, as one of those which treats its men better than most. I hear that the "capped" "pro" receives £10 a week, £400 a year, plus a £100 bonus at the end of the year.

J.P. must have settled down for his afternoon zizz and gone on for longer than he intended because last evening it was still fine and the remaining first round games of the Colony Mixed Doubles were played off with the three games all finishing in straight sets.

Out on Court 3 Mr and Mrs L. H. J. made short work of Cpt. Willoughby and Mrs. L. J. dington while on Court 3 behind the stands F. de M. Ribeiro and Mrs. R. de M. Ribeiro were made to play a bit harder to beat L. Col. Sullivan and Miss Mansfield. Col. Sullivan left us with the impression that he had the "L. J." in his pocket, but a full set of tennis, Ribeiro and Mrs. R. de M. Ribeiro might have had to think again.

MISTAKES Down below us Choy Th. kin and Miss Greta Lo took advantage of the mistakes made by Solomon Saul, who showed almost uncanny accuracy in hitting the stop-netting half way up with his smashes from mid court.

It was a pity Saul was so out of touch because the ladies in this game were playing well and were taking their full share in the tennis rather than the secondary or also-ran position into which the defeat side is so often forced in local mixed doubles.

If a word of curbing criticism might be allowed, they should have hit the light ball. A great many of their "should have been" winners finished in the bottom of the net simply because they had been attempting to off the wrong ball and must learn patience. At the same time they kept getting well-nigh impossible shots up when they were in difficulties.

CLUB EVENTS In the various club events there were some good games with yet another example of a promising youngster seeming to be right on top and then allowing himself to be played out of it by an older and wiser head.

Reidar Getz showed in his match against G. P. Norton that he has been well taught, having lovely shots which he must learn to develop for effectiveness rather than for appearance. It has to be said that the game, be it sticks or the game, is really good. P. Anderson in a very pleasant to watch game against R. W. Wheeler, showed how much better he is at the

Four Arsenal Players In Wales Team

Cardiff, Sept. 13. Four Arsenal players are included in the Wales team to play Yugoslavia in a soccer international here on September 22.

The team was announced tonight as follows: Kelsey (Arsenal), Barnes (Arsenal), (Captain), Sherwood (Cardiff), Paul (Manchester City), Charles (Leeds), Brown (Arsenal), Reed (Ipswich), Tapscott (Arsenal), Ford (Cardiff), Allchurch (Swansea) and Clarke (Manchester City).—Reuter.

EXPENSES

Out of this £10 he has to pay his hotel expenses, though not his train fares. If the "awful" match happens to be on a nice handy ground like Lord's then, of course, he "wins".

Let us suppose he plays 30 matches a year, of one sort or another, on extremely supposition—at £5 net a time. That adds £150 to the £250.

And there is end-of-the-season talent money which is the secret of the club and the player. I should say that about £200 would be near the mark. Not that all clubs are the same, but about £200 for five months work in the year.

That is not all. There are chances of overseas tours, and most important to any cricketer, the tax-free benefit. On the whole then I should say that though his immediate earnings from the game may be slight, the "pro" does not

SOMETHING EXTRA

What of the money to be gained from the Cup and the Championship? A footballer in the Cup-winning side is paid a winning bonus of £2 for round three—the first in which the "big shot" play—up to £20 for winning the Final. It all adds up to £55.

What did the Surrey players get for winning the 1953 cricket Championship? A silver cigarette case more permanent than fifty lucas. But they got, as well, something extra in their talent money.

I am told that it was about £40. That was last year. Surrey players, in general, would be glad to hear that the cricketer had celebrated the "big shot" with a more substantial gain. The players deserve it.

Soccer Clubs Want Summer Call-Up For Z-Men

By W. CAPEL KIRBY

Who likes the present system of Army Z training? Certainly not the Soccer managers. So many clubs are affected by players being called-up at the start of the season that an approach may be made to Whitehall through the Army FA.

Said one manager with whom I discussed the problem: "We appreciate the sympathetic treatment we receive from the Services in releasing National Service men for matches, but surely it could be possible to arrange for professional footballers to finish their Z training in the close season."

From inquiries round the clubs I find many players had to break football training for equine bathing, a bad thing for football.

At one time Bolton had Pilling, Hartle, Bingley, Higgins and Tommy Banks away. Foster, Wilson and Lemon have only just returned to Nottingham Forest.

Burnley scouts in Scotland have reported favourably on Naira Thistle outside right Jimmy Doherty, but there will be strong competition for his services from Scottish clubs.

It's a grand club," is the Foulkes verdict on Southampton.

Bury are showing an interest in Sammy Smith, inside forward of Glasgow Rangers. Sammy was provisionally signed by the Ibrox club from Larkhall Thistle last season, and he cannot settle down to being a spectator instead of a player on match days.

Brazilians so liked the way Scottish referee Charlie Faulstich lived up to his name at the World Cup that they're angling for his services.

If B's Charlie goes, after the close-up he had of the Hungary-Brazil bottle party, he should henceforth be known as Faultless the Fearless.

HAPPY ENDING

Broken bones ended Ted Spicer's football career with Liverpool but have landed him an executive job with a well-known Northern firm of furnishing. He has settled in Wrexham where he was commissioned during the war before being attached to the Commandos.

Derby County have got to go to market, but there's nothing they fancy north of the Border. Commenting on the last two weekends he has spent in Scotland, manager Jack Barker told me they were a sheer waste of time. Jimmy McEwan, of Raithe Rovers, was the last player he had under review. Before that it was Bert Gourley, Gourrock inside forward.

What price promotion? Leicester City disposed of 6,000 season tickets and could have sold 30,000. Car park season tickets numbering 380 were over-applied for twice over. There's gold in them thar hills.

With young Jimmy Dunne, the Leicester City inside forward, it's a case of like father, like son, but only in looks. "In style of play there's absolutely no resemblance," says City manager, Norman Bullock.

Jimmy, of Ireland, Sheffield United and Arsenal fame, was a goal-crasher, whereas his pipsing is an academic type.

Russian Beats Pole

Vault Record

Moscow, Sept. 13. Piotr Denisenko, beat the European pole vault record with a leap of 4.46 metres (14 feet and 7 1/2 inches) when the Soviet Union Athletic Championships were continued in Kiev today.

Three of Russia's gold medalists in the European championships last month bettered their Berne times when winning national titles.

Ardalion Ignatiev, European 400 metres champion, won his event in 46.1 seconds, 5/10th of a second faster than his winning time in Berne. His time was a national record.

Evgeni Bularchuk won the 110 metres hurdles in 1.4 seconds, a tenth of a second better than when winning the European title and Tatyana Zerkova also clipped a tenth of a second off her Berne time when taking the women's 100 metres title in 1.7 seconds.

Singapore Girl Sprinter Clocks 11.4

Singapore, Sept. 13. Singapore girl sprinter Mary Kloss returned 11.4 secs. in her 100 yards dash at a meet here yesterday which would put her ahead of Japan's Aisaku Nambu who had clocked 12.5 secs. for the 100 metres.

Mary ran a close second to Japan's ace sprinter Aisaku Nambu at the Second Asian Games in Manila last May both clocking 12.5.

On her 100 yards performance Mary would have done 12.2 secs. If she ran the 100 metres and this would better Nambu's time of 12.5 of a second.

Spurring into the lead from the start, Mary left her closest rival, Mary Ross, five yards behind at the winning post. There was no wind accompanying or against her.

Jocelyn de Souza, an official of the Singapore Amateur Athletic Association, said that Mary's time was subject to ratification and the track will be re-checked today. He added: "Mary's feat is one of those things that happen to all athletes. The weather was fine and she was in the right mood."

Britain Beat France At Bridge

Montreux, Sept. 12. Britain beat France, holders of the European Bridge Championships, in the second round of the 1954 Championships here today.

Britain and Denmark now share first place with four victory points each. The British team beat France by 12 points, scoring 52 to the French team's 40. Britain beat Ireland in the first round yesterday.

Other second round results today were: Denmark beat Lebanon 16 points (55 to 39) Germany beat Finland by nine points (66 to 57), Belgium and Italy drew, Norway had a bye in this round.

LADIES' SECTION

In the first round of the Ladies' Section of the Championships, Britain was beaten by Ireland by 18 points—51 to 38.

Other first round results for the Ladies were: Italy beat Belgium by eight points (53 to 45), France beat Holland by 29 points (79 to 50), Germany beat Finland by 41 points (63 to 43), and Switzerland beat Norway by 16 points (55 to 40). Austria and Sweden drew—Reuter.

THE CURTIS CUP WAS LOST IN THE FIRST SIX HOLES OF THE FIRST DAY

By HENRY LONGHURST

Reflecting on the Curtis Cup match as the sun set on this delightful Merion clubhouse and the captains and the kings—or perhaps on this occasion the queens—had departed I came to one definite conclusion, namely that the captains of all future British teams should be issued by the Royal and Ancient, the Ladies' Golf Union or the Professional Golfers' Association, as may be appropriate, with a long whip.

This they should crack on the first tee on the first day at the start of the four-round, threatening those who have not played in such matches before and actually striking those who have.

This, it seems to me, is the only way in which it might be possible to prevent British players from losing international matches in the first six holes of the first day.

That, briefly, is the story of the loss of the Curtis Cup, which the British women won so gallantly at Muirfield two years ago.

By 11 o'clock on the morning of the four-round our fate was virtually sealed.

From that moment onwards it was a level match. The singles, which finished level at three all, might have provided one of the most exciting days of golf for years. As it was, all that was being decided was the margin of our defeat, together with a few individual reputations.

Of the latter none shines brighter than that of little Janet Robertson, who is 19 years old and an assistant cashier in an establishment at Glasgow, to whose manager I respectfully suggest that she be given a month's holiday with pay.

In the foursomes, with a tailoring partner in Mrs. Peel, she kept her head and her composure and played as though she had been taking part in these contests for years. As for her performance in the singles, no praise can be too great.

Against a burly and formidable opponent in Joyce Ziske she made a poor start with 6, 7, 4, and was at once two down.

She came home in 37 and had only got one hole back, and went out in 39 in the afternoon and was still one down. From that point her score of 4, 3, 4, 3, 4, 2, tells its own story.

She did fall at the 15th, leaving herself a horrible put to hole, but she got it in and from that point never looked back.

She holed a very awkward one at the 16th, put a full wooden club shot on the heart of the short 17th and ended in a blaze of glory by holing a five-yarder for the hole and the match needing only a four for 72.

No tribute could be higher than that of a member of the United States Golf Association, who said: "This is the best we have seen since the days of Pam Barton."

The highest credit must also go to the British Champion, Frances Stephens, not only for beating her opposite number, Mary Lena Faulk, but also for the way she did it.

Though I deliberately did not ask her about it, I know from other members of the team that she has been far from well during the week.

She was one up at lunch with both round in 78 but, after some very scrappy stuff on both sides, she was two down with six to play.

From this point she finished 3, 4, 4, 4, 3, 4, to win on the last green. Furthermore, this included the heartbreaking experience of seeing her lead vanish on the 17th, where she got a perfect three only for Miss Faulk to put her tee shot almost dead for a two.

In freshening wind neither could reach the 18th in two. Playing first, Stephens was perhaps nine feet short from 50 yards, whereupon Faulk pitched up to within two feet, certainly no more.

Swinging the putter with slow precision, Stephens rolled the ball into the dead centre of the hole and, miracle of miracles, it was the American Champion who gave a quick jab at the ball and missed. How refreshing to be writing this old, old story in reverse.

Miss Biggood was one up at lunch and played none too badly thereafter. However, there was no holding her opponent, Claire Doran.

A tall finely built girl, Miss Doran went out in 37, including a couple of sixes, and came home 4, 3, 4, 3, 4, 3. I'm afraid I played away from me, she said, and that about describes it.

CAUGHT IN REVERSE

Heroine of the match at Muirfield was Elizabeth Price. This time, alas, she caught it in reverse. Her putting, normally so calm and serene and the strongest part of her game, was almost a total loss, and she took, I am sorry to reveal, 80.

Against one of the strongest competitors in American women's golf, Polly Riley, this simply would not do, and early on in the proceedings she had reluctantly to be written off.

Mrs Jessie Valentine held her own for a while against Mrs. Smith, who, as Grace de Moss,

LADIES' GOLF AT SHEK-O

Mrs Dawson-Grove won the hooey competition played at Shek-O last Thursday with a score of two down.

The July-August running medal competition was, as usual, divided into two sections—Mrs F. Hunter winning the Silver Division with nett 65, and Mrs G. Johnson the Bronze Division with nett 58.

The Ladies' Club Championship over 30 holes will be played on Thursday, October 14. Part of the draw for, and the list of the draw will be published after the next meeting.

After the next meeting will be the first 18 and the second 18.

Last will be played at the club house on Monday, October 19.

Merion, Pennsylvania.

lost the vital game to Miss Price at Muirfield, but, gradually the American drew ahead, winning in the end fairly comfortably on the 15th.

The other winner for Britain, or rather British Isles since Eire still joins with us in golf matches, was Philomena Garvey, from Dublin. Both round in '30, none too bad in a course which is like an undulating edition of Stoko Pogos, she and Miss Kirby, Atlanta, one of the most experienced American golfers, were all square.

Both were out in 41 in the afternoon, with Garvey one up and then, with the exception of a seven at the 15th, she really turned on some splendid golf.

Apart from this lapse she was two under fours till the match ended at the 17th and, with only two short holes, this was fine stuff.

So in the end we had to hand back the Curtis Cup, which the British captain, Mrs John Beck, did with a gracious speech, but it was galling to think that anyone who attended only the singles would really find little to choose between the teams. If only we could cancel out the first hour of the foursomes. What these teams want is not a captain but a whipper-in.

'Bring Complaints To Council'

Appeal At Hockey Assn. Meeting

Li-Comdr C. Anthony, speaking at the Annual General Meeting of the Hongkong Hockey Association held yesterday at the Club Lullano termed as undesirable the fact that matters and comments concerning the Association were being aired by members in the press. If members of the HKHA had any complaints, they should be brought before the Council, before expressing them through the press, he added.

Li-Comdr Anthony suggested that at the beginning of the season a tentative inter-team be selected and then play through-out the season. Last year Hongkong lost the inter-team game with Macao due to poor team work, he commented.

Mr G. T. Palmer, the outgoing President told the meeting that there had been considerable argument in the Council regarding the League. Many apparently, felt that the League was causing a great deal of ill-feeling.

There had been a suggestion, continued Mr Palmer, that all fixtures for the season should be arranged by the Association, but the members were to be friendly games with no points system.

Mr Palmer then invited the meeting to give their views on the subject, but all male members declined to say anything. Finally, Mrs Road, one of the Vice-Presidents of the Association, suggested that each member be asked individually for their opinions. The answers thus obtained showed that the men favoured a league being run.

Mr Palmer asked members to give the Association all the help they could.

"It is not fair of my Association to expect a quota of individuals to do the whole work of the Association. I, therefore, ask everybody connected with the Association, to do their utmost to help," he said.

Atom Age Engineers For Royal Navy

Plymouth, Sept. 13.
Marine engineers of the new jet-and-atom age are being produced at the British Royal Navy's engineering "university" here.

Officially, it is the Royal Naval Engineering College, Manadon, Dover, and in accordance with British naval practice for shore establishments—or "stone frigates"—it bears a ship name, HMS Thunderer.

But the 350 officers attending either initial courses in marine engineering to University standard, or more advanced studies after some years at sea, enjoy facilities and access to technical information which they could get nowhere else.

For instance, there is available to the instructors at Manadon the fruits of the research of hundreds of scientists and technicians who form the Royal Naval Scientific Service. These civilian scientists under Admiralty direction, are working constantly on the problems of the jet and atom age.

They are the key men in Britain's development of atomic propulsion, to give but one major example.

Again, the officer-students at Manadon, including young men from Burma and Persia as well as all the Commonwealth countries except South Africa, have a lovely setting for their studies.

The focus of the 100-acre estate which forms the premises of the college is Manadon House, a lovely mansion dating back to the 17th century and for generations the home of a wealthy Devonshire family. It is believed to have been designed by the famous architect Inigo Jones.

The estate also has a much older stone Tithe Barn, where the tenth part of local crops used to be set aside as payment due to the Church and which is legally guarded from destruction as a scheduled ancient monument.

In sharp contrast to these architectural gems of an earlier age are the huge engineering "bays" or workshops, the modern lecture rooms and laboratories and the huddled living accommodation for students.

HIGH STANDARD

So history and science meet in this beautiful rural corner of western England.

Yet the Royal Naval Engineering College offers its students much more than a University standard education in marine and aviation engineering.

As the Admiralty says: "In addition to professional training of a high standard, it is necessary to develop officer qualities in students. With this in mind, there are excellent facilities for sport, including motoring, flying and sailing in both dinghies and ocean-racing yachts."

The Executive officers of the Royal Navy have long given the joking title of "plumber" to their engineering colleagues, but the Engineering Branch has had its revenge by excelling in sailing, and HMS Thunderer recently won the Commander-in-

Chief's Cup for sailing dinghies.

The "plumbers" have also penetrated the field of aviation—a fact which is emphasised by the four service aircraft, one of them equipped as a flying classroom, which are maintained at a nearby airfield for the students of the Engineering College.

If ever the "plumber" was merely an engineering officer who kept the power units of warships ticking, that day has now gone.

The highly specialised training at Manadon is divided into three main categories to meet the needs of the highly mechanised navies of today. These concern ships' machinery, aircraft and weapons.

From general marine engineering, the student of this college passes to "sub-specialisation" in one of these categories, which in themselves are interdependent.

The advanced stage reached by British naval engineers is particularly illustrated by the fact that the Royal Navy is in the van of the development of marine gas turbines, starting after the war with a motor gun-boat with this form of propulsion, which was the first vessel of its kind in the world.

SCIENTIST-ENGINEER

So the "plumber" today becomes a scientist-engineer who knows all about his ships, his engines, his aircraft and his guns.

But there is one branch which is not catered for at Manadon. That is the Navy's electrical branch, newly established after the last war to meet the requirements imposed by the highly complex electronic equipment which constitutes the eyes and ears of a warship in this new age.

Electrical officers have a separate training, for the engineer has more than enough to keep him busy outside the field of electronics.—China Mail Special.

E. Germany Hitching The Operetta To Political Bandwaggon

Berlin, Sept. 13.

The Communist regime in East Germany is expected to try hard in the coming season to hitch the operetta on to its political bandwaggon.

East German newspapers have launched a vigorous campaign calling for a "reform" of the classical operetta and the creation of a "progressive socialist operetta."

Special "collectives" (groups) of authors and composers have been formed at various theatres in East Berlin to realise this aim, according to "Neues Deutschland," the main Communist party newspaper.

Discussions on the matter over the years have brought about unanimity on the thesis that the new style operetta must have socialist content "as a matter of course," the newspaper declared, although it admitted that there are still theatre-goers who do not want "political operettas."

But, it added, "Johann Strauss proves with his immortal work, Die Fledermaus, that progressive content by no means kills the operetta, as the enemies of progress assert."

HEALTHY BALANCE

Declaring that it is the duty of every theatre now to create "a healthy balance" between "cultural inheritance and the new progressive realism," it cited as an example of successful rewriting the version of the old operetta "Bodero" done by the East Berlin Metropol Theatre two years ago.

At the time, the official East German news agency, A.D.N., said that the new libretto "has nothing in common with the old operetta except the title."

Neues Deutschland particularly welcomed the "modernised" version of Johann Strauss' "Glips Baron" now in the East German repertoire.

ADMISSIBLE

The new libretto is admissible, it said, because its socialist content has been improved and because of the serious musical and dramatic works have already been changed in the last few years to suit the Communist ideology. Schiller's drama "Don Carlos" has appeared on an East Berlin stage in a revised version "doing away with the remains of the capitalist epoch" as the East Berlin press put it.

NEW ENDING

The 125-year-old French opera, "The Mute of Portici," by Daniel Francois Aubert was performed at the East Berlin State Opera with a new ending and many other changes.

Since, so far, there are no "new and progressive operas," East German theatres have been filling the gap with cantatas and choruses in praise of the forces of labour or political leaders from Stalin to the East German President, Wilhelm Pieck.

Few contemporary operettas have survived the ideological censor's red pencil. Provincial stages have therefore produced Soviet operettas.

The sole post-war operetta which has had some success in East Germany is "Every Year in May," dealing with the annual Communist-organised cycle race between Warsaw, Berlin and Prague.

Critics welcomed it for its "profession of international solidarity" the composer having "successfully" included a number of foreign folk dances and folk songs.—China Mail Special.

Yellow Fever Outbreak In Trinidad

Caracas, Sept. 13.

The Government today closed Venezuelan ports and airports to ships and planes from Trinidad because of an outbreak of yellow fever in that island, only a few miles off the Venezuelan coast.

The Ministry of Health said every person arriving from Trinidad by means other than scheduled airlines or ships must carry a certificate of health.

The announcement said the measures were taken since the Trinidad public health authorities themselves declared the city of Port of Spain and the surrounding area an "infected" zone.

TEMPORARY MEASURE

The measures are temporary and subject to revision since the situation in the "infected" area is better known, the announcement said. In Port of Spain a spokesman said that, under the present sanitary regulations, all aircraft and maritime shipping are subject to spraying on arrival at and departure from Trinidad.—United Press.

Plane's Cockpit Recovered

Shannon, Sept. 13.

Salvage workers tonight brought ashore the nose and cockpit of the KLM super-Constellation "Orion" in which 28 people lost their lives when it crashed into the River Shannon near here on September 6. The parts salvaged contained the cockpit instruments which will be scrutinised by officials of the Irish Department of Industry and Commerce and the Royal Dutch Airlines' officials.

Meanwhile at Killarney County about five to ten miles from the place where the airliner crashed, the body of a man was washed ashore. The police are investigating whether it is the body of one of the passengers.—United Press.

STORY OF FIGHT TOLD AT MURDER TRIAL

Evidence that the accused struck his mother and then stabbed him in the arm, shoulders and neck with a triangular file when he went to her assistance, was given by Ng Sum this morning at the trial of Chau Hing, a factory worker, charged at the Criminal Sessions with the murder of Ng's father.

Ng Sum said that he awoke sometime in the early hours of May 24 to find flames coming from the side of the verandah where the accused and his family lived on the second floor of 81 Taipo Road. He then saw the accused hitting his mother.

The prosecution, conducted by Crown Counsel, Mr. D. F. O. Mayne, alleges that the accused deliberately set fire to the premises, a crowded tenement, by using petrol. As a result, Ng Chung-yim, the elderly father of the witness, received burns from which he died the following day.

The accused, who is represented by Mr. Percy Chen, instructed by Mr. G. Golby, has denied the charge.

The trial is before Mr. Justice J. R. Gregg and a jury of three women and four men.

Ng Sum testified that the accused and his family, consisting

Fears Of Coup In Vietnam

Salmon, Sept. 13.

The threat of a military coup in Vietnam grew tonight as army units held countrywide protest meetings against the Government's decision to dismiss their Chief of Staff, General Nguyen Van Hinh, 40, son of a former Vietnam Prime Minister.

The Secretary of State for Defence, Mr. Le Ngoc Chan, was refused admittance to the General Staff headquarters in Saigon today when he came to summon General Van Hinh to surrender his post.

General Van Hinh, who was a French ace pilot during world war two, reaffirmed today that he would ignore the Government order to take six months' leave and to go on a mission to France.

Independent observers considered that unless Prime Minister Ngo Dinh Diem, was prepared to yield in his conflict with the army, Vietnam might become the scene of a military revolt.

Extra guards were reported to have been posted at key points in Saigon. Strong forces of troops and police faced each other outside the city's radio station. The troops were reported to have been sent by the General, the police by the Prime Minister.

REPORTS CENSORED

Local press reports of the trouble have been censored. The French language newspaper, Journal de l'Extreme Orient, mentioned the posting of guards at key points. The report was later censored.

France has powerful forces commanded by General Paul Ely still in Vietnam and it is used in any attempt to overthrow the Vietnamese Government, the French forces could probably take control of the situation.

General Ely flew back to Saigon from Hanoi yesterday. Political quarters in Saigon believed the Prime Minister would meet with solid resistance from the army. If he tried to force the General from his post, Reports differed on the reason for the Prime Minister's action.

One version said he did not want a Chief of Staff known to have lukewarm sentiments towards ex-Emperor Bao Dai, head of Vietnam, and to favour a United Vietnamese Army, thus differing from religious sects in south Vietnam who have their private armies. Other reports said the General was suspected of a conspiracy to oust the Prime Minister and replace him with the General's father.—Reuter.

Indians Demonstrate Against Cow Slaughter

Demonstrators dash out and try to break through the police cordon in front of the Parliament Building, New Delhi, where small groups organised by the Ram Raja Farashad have been demonstrating almost every day this season, demanding a ban on the slaughter of cows. The Sadhus, carrying saffron flags, inscribed with a swastika, met in an orderly manner and tried to convince the Sub-Inspector of Police on duty of the rightness of their cause. Then suddenly they rushed out and tried to break the police cordon outside Parliament House. They were later brought under control.—Express Photo.

Indian's Threat To Star Ferry Inspector In Court

An Indian, Atma Sikh, pleaded guilty to charges of abusive language, disorderly conduct and malicious damage before Mr Poon Yan-hoi at Central this morning.

After pleading guilty, Sikh, in way of explanation said "I drunk last night."

The Police told the Court that defendant was seen anguishing with ricksha caddies outside the Star Ferry on Sunday night by Mr Poon, a Star Ferry Inspector. Having settled his account with a puller he went into the Star Ferry Wharf and continued to vent his chagrin by swearing loudly and shouting as he passed through the turnstile.

Asked to moderate his language by Mr. Ciorien, defendant swore at him in English with particular emphasis on the colour of the latter's skin. He continued to curse loudly all the way across to Kowloon where he was arrested by Mr Poon who had boarded the same ferry. There the case was transferred to Central Police Station.

At Central Police Station defendant swore at Sub-Inspector Bere, who was on duty, pulled down the notices in the prisoner's cage when he was locked up and tore at the wire netting which he damaged to the value of $30.

He pleaded guilty to two counts of abusive language, a charge of disorderly conduct and malicious damage exceeding $25 this morning.

The Magistrate fined him a total of $100 or four weeks on the four charges, ordered him to pay $30 compensation for the damage to the netting and serve an additional ten days and bound him over in $150 for one year.

Defendant, the Court was told, had two previous convictions—larceny and disorderly conduct, the bond for the latter had just expired.

When sentenced, Sikh shrugged and said "no mon y".
